Typhoon Threatens U. S. Forces On Iwo Jima

160-MILE WIND SCREAMING OVER HISTORIC ISLE

Caves Used By Japs In War May Be Life Savers For Americans

TOKYO, Oct. 9—A violent typhoon wrecked many American buildings and other installations on historic Iwo Jima today.

Fears were expressed for the safety of several hundred U. S. Air Force and coast guard personnel stationed on the battle-scarred island.

Thirty families of American service dependents also were on Iwo when the tropical storm sent winds screaming over the island at velocities up to 160 miles an hour in the center of the typhoon.

Up until night there were no reports of casualties. It was hoped that the volcanic isle's occupants may have taken timely shelter in hundreds of caves that were used by the Japanese as dugouts in the wartime fighting against American forces.

American planes were made ready to take off from Tokyo and Guam to fly rescue and relief parties to Iwo after the typhoon, nicknamed "Rosalind," whirled out to sea and headed for another World War II battleground, Okinawa, as well as Japan.

RADIO contact between Tokyo and Iwo was broken off, but a late International News Service dispatch from Guam said the coast guard radio station there was able to pick up a weak message from the stricken island after a seven-hour communications blackout.

The Iwo message relayed from Guam said nearly every building and installation on the island, won by the Americans at such high cost in blood and treasure, suffered damage.

The Guam dispatch said it was

$84,188 OVERPAY ON TAX MADE BY IRVING BERLIN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — The treasury department disclosed today that song writer Irving Berlin overpaid his 1945 income tax by $84,188. Berlin gave his address as New York City.

Other overpayments made public by the treasury included:

Mary S. Harkness, of New York City, $114,859 on her 1944 taxes; William S. Paley, of New York City, $131,856 for 1944; and S. R. Guggenheim, also of New York, $135,519 for 1945.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

These almost seem like normal times—what with the government urging us to eat fewer eggs while already holding 90 million pounds it doesn't know what to do with.

They've dried them, they've frozen them and it still looks like an administration omlette.

Anyhow Gandhi has approved our food conservation program—he feels that with a little practice any of us can look like him.

And you'll have to admit that the man is far ahead of his time—he was wearing a long sheet before Paris or New York thought of lowering the hem line.

Before I forget it—next week is national letter writing week, but there is still time to pluck a quill from the goose.

The theme is "Letters Are Links to Friendship"—just think, there was a time when we had no correspondence with Moscow.

To Take Stand

OHIO DANCER Patricia Schmidt, shown in her Havana, Cuba, prison cell, is scheduled to tell a Cuban court how she allegedly shot and killed Chicago Lawyer John L. Mee because he threatened her with a sword aboard his yacht last April. The 22-year-old night club entertainer is expected to take the stand as soon as the twice-postponed trial gets underway.

BRITAIN CASHES MORE OF GOLD

Cripps Says More Cuts Due On Imports Unless Dollar Aid Comes

LONDON, Oct. 9—Prime Minister Attlee summoned his reorganized cabinet today amid reports that Britain has cashed another 80 million dollars of her gold reserve to buttress her sagging financial structure.

The full cabinet was believed to be studying steps to meet the nation's increasingly grave economic situation.

Reports were current in London that Britain turned the new lot from her gold reserve over to the United States after appealing for stop-gap dollar aid from Washington.

BRITAIN drew eighty million dollars from her two billion, 400 million dollar gold treasury for the first time Sept. 15.

The Daily Mail's financial editor said the liner Queen Mary docking in New York today carried forty million dollars in gold, which is the same amount the

POTATOES, FRUIT THREATENED BY LABOR SHORTAGE

CHARDON, O., Oct. 9—Large fruit and potato crops in Geauga county were threatened with rot today because of inability of farmers to hire harvesting help.

County Agricultural Agent Charles A. Haas said appeals have been directed to Geauga county industries and merchants employing a large number of persons.

Agent F. G. Haskins, of neighboring Lake County, said response to his call for aid in harvesting crops had been "ample" and said he hoped the trend would continue.

Haas asserted that "hundreds of tons of food so much needed now will be wasted," if more help is not forthcoming.

FIVE-YEAR-OLD PROVES CHERRY TREE IN BLOOM

Larry Conrad, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gay Conrad, 315 Watt street, walked proudly into the office of The Circleville Herald, Wednesday afternoon, and exhibited a cherry blossom from a tree in the backyard at his home.

The youngster said that "snowballs" also were in bloom in his yard.

SOVIET DEFEAT CASTS SHADOW ON U. N. MEET

Lines Of East-West Split More Sharply Drawn Than Even Before

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 9—The United Nations assembly committees met today in an atmosphere of tense bitterness following the stunning defeat administered to the Soviet bloc on the Greek border issue.

The lines of the East-West split were more sharply drawn than ever after the 57-nation political and security committee late yesterday approved the United States move for a permanent Balkan supervisory commission.

The body will be "watchdog" over the activities of Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria on the one hand and Greece on the other.

• • •

DEFIANCE of the committee by Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky, Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia and Bulgaria and Albania reached such proportions in the late evening hours that Britain's Hector McNeil stated:

"I certainly deprecate rudeness here such as displayed in Yugoslavia's attacks."

Previously, Paul Henri-Spaak three times rebuked impetuous Bebler for interrupting his speech. Bebler demanded a vote of confidence in the chairman, Joseph Bech of Luxembourg. The latter received the approving hands of all but the Soviet bloc, which abstained.

In the opinion of numerous delegates, the flare-up by the Soviet group was the "worst exhibition" of international behavior seen—as a leading European representative put it—since "Nazi defiance roused the world before the war."

• • •

THE SOVIET bloc storm came immediately after the committee voted by thirty-four against six for a Balkan bor-

SOLON FAVORS STRENGTHENING TAFT LABOR LAW

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 9—Rep. Fred A. Hartley Jr., (R) N. J. was planning today a campaign to strengthen the Taft-Hartley labor law by forbidding pickets from interferring with a man going to work.

The chairman of the house labor committee told an audience of Oregon and Washington business men in Portland that the new bill is needed to sharpen the teeth of the present law.

Hartley declared that management and labor are entering a "new era" of labor relations and said he helped write the present law because:

"I realized the labor pendulum had swung too far against business."

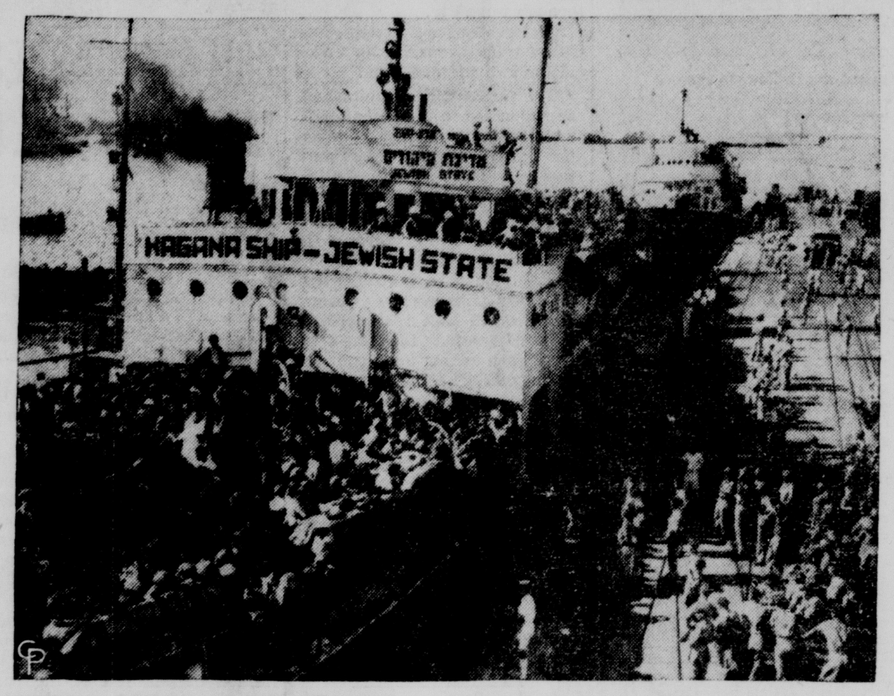

Hartley described the Taft-Hartley act as the most "Misrepresented and villified" piece of legislation delivered by congress in 20 years.

PROBER CHARGES REDS INFILTRATE MOVIELAND

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—Rep. Thomas (R) N. J., chairman of the house un-American activities committee, charged today that "the communists have infiltrated the movie industry."

Thomas said his committee will substantiate the charge at public hearings which will open Oct. 20 in Washington.

An imposing array of witnesses, among them many Hollywood stars and motion picture producers, has been subpoenaed for the hearings, which are expected to last two weeks.

"Stink" Bugs Ride Into Ohio On Winds Blowing Out Of Southland

Conditions were a might cooler Thursday, but the weather bureau forecasters said that another upward trend in temperatures was in the making beginning Friday.

Weatherman C. G. Andrus said there was a possibility of showers developing Friday night, with the sky clearing again by Saturday. He said that any rain probably would be confined to the northern part of the state.

Andrus said that the weather bureau has been deluged the last several days with reports of a plague of "stink" bugs in many Ohio areas.

The green and brown shield-shape insects have been seen in great numbers and where the windows are screenless they have been invading homes.

Biologists at Baldwin-Wallace college in Berea suggested that the bugs may have been carried to Ohio by southern winds. They said the insects are of a type which feed on cotton in southern states.

The insects also resemble fruit bugs which are found in berry patches. Since the berry season is long past, it is difficult to account for the bugs at this time.

COUNTY BANS GAMBLING CITY SAYS IT NEEDS

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 9—Wheeling's famed "controlled gambling" was threatened today by a sweeping order banning gambling in the county.

Sheriff Tom Padden issued the ban after appearing before a grand jury probing gambling in Wheeling. He said he expected "full cooperation" from city officials in enforcing the ban.

Wheeling city council failed to take a stand on the question. City Manager William Hannig told them "controlled gambling" was necessary because the current city budget listed $85,000 expected revenue from that source.

BRAZIL MOURNS PASSING OF WIFE OF PRESIDENT

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 9—Madame Carmela Dutra, 63, wife of President Eurico Gaspar Dutra of Brazil, died today following a one week's illness.

Dutra was at her bedside when she died. Madame Dutra was the mother of four children.

Brazil immediately entered national mourning.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—The national advisory committee on aeronautics disclosed today that "Flying Stovepipe" ram-jet guided missiles launched from B-29's off the Virginia capes have reached speeds exceeding 1,500 miles an hour.

M. B. Ames, chief of the committee's aerodynamics research branch, said that the pilotless missiles propelled from jet thrusts in the tail structure have attained speeds "in excess of Mach number two."

MYSTERY DIVE BY AIR LINER PUZZLES PILOTS

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 9—A giant American Airlines plane which suddenly looped and overturned, then nosedived 1,000 feet before it was righted, was under guard for examination at El Paso today.

No one was seriously injured in the plane, although the crew and 48 frightened passengers were tumbled about with the baggage during a brief but fearful moment last night while the craft was flying upside down.

The plane, bound from Dallas, Tex., to Los Angeles, Cal., was flying at 8,000 feet when it suddenly went into a steep climb while speeding along at 230 miles an hour.

The pilot, Capt. Charles Sisto, 36, of Culver City, Cal., worked frantically at the controls until the plane was righted.

Sisto adjusted the automatic pilot, a gyroscopic device, as the airliner went into a loop. He switched off the automatic pilot, and then the plane went into a nose dive.

Finally at 3,000 feet, Sisto managed to right the craft and bring it to a safe emergency landing at El Paso.

When the plane looped, Sisto was thrown helplessly from his seat by centrifugal force. Capt. Melvin Logan of Los Angeles was left alone to carry on the struggle with the manual controls.

KIDNAPED MEN FEARED SLAIN

Ohio-Michigan Border Area Scoured For Two Gas Station Attendants

DETROIT, Oct. 9 — Police combed swamplands and unfrequented roads in the Michigan-Ohio area today in a search for the bodies of two gas station attendants feared kidnaped and murdered.

The search, also involving authorities in Indiana, centered around Erie, Mich., and east toward the Lake Erie resort region. Ohio officials said they believed the bandits may have disposed of the bodies before fleeing to a Toledo hideout.

Detective James Van Landegend of the Michigan state police Detroit post said, "both men are dead. There is no other explanation."

The two apparent kidnapings were about 45 miles apart on Telegraph road in Michigan and the victims both were attendants at all-night stations.

THEY ARE Donald Dusseau, 29, of Temperance, Mich., and James R. Hall, 21, of Detroit.

Police said the only clue was a report that several days ago Dusseau had an argument with a Toledo hoodlum, who is sought. Conditions at both stations, officers added, indicated kidnap after robbery.

Dusseau was reported missing yesterday from Harry's refinery at Erie, Mich., near the Ohio-Michigan line, and his car found at the station. His employer said $63, cigarets and a spotlight were missing.

HALL'S disappearance was noted an hour later, along with $85. His car was on a grease rack where it apparently was being serviced when he was surprised by intruders.

CHILE OUSTS YUGOSLAV REDS AS DISTURBERS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 9—The government of Chile announced today the deportation of two Yugoslav diplomats on the grounds they acted aginst the "national interests."

The expulsion followed a government statement that a Russian satellite state had helped instigate the general strike of 16,000 Chilean coal miners.

Given several hours to leave the country were Andres Cunja, Yugoslav charge d'affaires, and Talipor Jakasa, Secretary of the Yugoslav legation in Argentina.

Liquor Flow To Continue In Scotland

Canny Folk Have No Plan To Emulate Shutdown Of U. S. Distilleries

LONDON, Oct. 9—A spokesman for the Scottish whisky distillers association declared today that the British distilling industry is unlikely to emulate the American 60-day shutdown to conserve grains.

Philip Gee, London, representative for the association, pointed out that the "circumstances are different in Britain."

Gee added:

"The stocks of British distillers are far below normal. America is presently overstocked and I don't think the curtailment will affect the American distillers seriously."

The official United States decision to request European grain receiving countries to imitate the American shutdown placed Britain in an extremely awkward position.

The export of Scotch whisky is one of Britain's biggest and easiest dollar earners.

The labor government has been doing its utmost to get the distillers to increase production in order to facilitate heavier exports to the U. S. and other hard currency areas.

PRISONERS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO GAIN FREEDOM

MANSFIELD, O., Oct. 9—Two Franklin county prisoners were safely lodged in Mansfield reformatory today after one of them assaulted a sheriff's deputy in an unsuccessful escape attempt yesterday.

Deputies Edward W. Beckman and Thurlow Timmons reported that Lewis Wiley, 21, of Hanford Village, hit Beckman a glancing blow with a two-pound iron hook smuggled from county jail.

The attack on Beckman, driver of the automobile in which the two prisoners were being transported, occurred about 100 yards from the reformatory entrance. Timmons subdued Wiley with his pistol.

Wiley was sentenced to one to 20 years for auto stealing. Another prisoner, Dwight Mercer, 24, of Columbus, sentenced to three to 45 years for grand larceny, took no part in the escape attempt.

RETURN FARES IN OHIO NEAR VANISHING POINT

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9—Virtually all round-trip railroad fares in Ohio will be eliminated Oct. 13 when a state utilities commission rate increase order goes into effect.

The commission order, amending an earlier rate increase, provides, in effect, that no round-trip fares will obtain on trips of less than 200 miles in each direction.

Another amendment, also effective Oct. 13, provides what amounts to a 20 per cent increase in commuter fares.

Meanwhile, the commission was expected to follow the example of the interstate commerce commission and grant railroads operating in Ohio a 10 per cent intrastate freight rate boost.

FLAGS TO FLY AT HALF MAST ALL DAY FRIDAY

Period Of Reverent Silence Decreed As First Bodies Arrive In U. S.

Flying of flags at half-mast, and a period of reverent silence at 12 noon, Friday, will mark Circleville's observance of the arrival at San Francisco, Calif., of World War II overseas dead.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon issued an official proclamation, Thursday, calling on all citizens to participate in this tribute to the nation's heroes.

The mayor's proclamation also pertains to Oct. 25 when the second shipment is scheduled to arrive at New York City.

TO PAY tribute to the two arrivals the Lockbourne Army Air Base will join with other Ninth Air Force installations. The ceremonies at Lockbourne, Oct. 10 and again Oct. 25, will consist primarily of the flying of the flag at half-mast, and the firing of a 21-gun salute with one minute intervals between each volley at high noon.

Colonel Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., commanding officer at the Lockbourne Army Air Base, said it was desired that all citizens of the surrounding areas be made cognizant of the significance of this special observance.

Mayor Gordon's proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, the first shipment of World War II dead from overseas is scheduled to arrive Oct. 10 at San Francisco, Calif., and

WHEREAS, the second shipment of World War II dead from overseas is scheduled to arrive Oct. 25 at New York City, and

WHEREAS, it is fitting and proper that reverent tribute should be expressed by the citizenry to the memory of our nation's fallen heroes,

THEREFORE, I, Ben H. Gordon, Mayor of the City of Circleville, Ohio, on this 9th day of October, 1947, do hereby urge that all residents of Circleville fly flags at half-mast on Oct. 10

LABOR TROUBLE MAY HAVE HIT POLICY RACKET

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 9 — Labor troubles may have hit the numbers racket in Cincinnati.

However, police were inclined to discount rumors that the number writers were "on strike" and were refusing to write further policy slips because of a cut in their commissions from 30 to 25 per cent.

If the rumor is true, the operators can, like other business, blame "increased costs." With business lagging and the competition getting stiffer, some of the operators raised their payoffs from 500-to-1 to 650-to-1—and cut the commissions of the writers to offset the increase.

BRITISH FEAR NEWS LEAK ON BRIDAL GOWN

LONDON, Oct. 9—British court circles declared today that if details of Princess Elizabeth's bridal gown leak out prior to her wedding day the present style will be scrapped and another designed in its place.

The British press yesterday expressed dissatisfaction over a Buckingham palace edict imposing secrecy on the bridal gown and going-away costume.

CHILE OUSTS YUGOSLAV REDS AS DISTURBERS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 9—The government of Chile announced today the deportation of two Yugoslav diplomats on the grounds they acted aginst the "national interests."

The expulsion followed a government statement that a Russian satellite state had helped instigate the general strike of 16,000 Chilean coal miners.

Given several hours to leave the country were Andres Cunja, Yugoslav charge d'affaires, and Talipor Jakasa, Secretary of the Yugoslav legation in Argentina.

Canny Folk Have No Plan To Emulate Shutdown Of U. S. Distilleries

LONDON, Oct. 9—A spokesman for the Scottish whisky distillers association declared today that the British distilling industry is unlikely to emulate the American 60-day shutdown to conserve grains.

Philip Gee, London, representative for the association, pointed out that the "circumstances are different in Britain."

Gee added:

"The stocks of British distillers are far below normal. America is presently overstocked and I don't think the curtailment will affect the American distillers seriously."

The official United States decision to request European grain receiving countries to imitate the American shutdown placed Britain in an extremely awkward position.

The export of Scotch whisky is one of Britain's biggest and easiest dollar earners.

The labor government has been doing its utmost to get the distillers to increase production in order to facilitate heavier exports to the U. S. and other hard currency areas.

PRISONERS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO GAIN FREEDOM

MANSFIELD, O., Oct. 9—Two Franklin county prisoners were safely lodged in Mansfield reformatory today after one of them assaulted a sheriff's deputy in an unsuccessful escape attempt yesterday.

Deputies Edward W. Beckman and Thurlow Timmons reported that Lewis Wiley, 21, of Hanford Village, hit Beckman a glancing blow with a two-pound iron hook smuggled from county jail.

The attack on Beckman, driver of the automobile in which the two prisoners were being transported, occurred about 100 yards from the reformatory entrance. Timmons subdued Wiley with his pistol.

Wiley was sentenced to one to 20 years for auto stealing. Another prisoner, Dwight Mercer, 24, of Columbus, sentenced to three to 45 years for grand larceny, took no part in the escape attempt.

RETURN FARES IN OHIO NEAR VANISHING POINT

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9—Virtually all round-trip railroad fares in Ohio will be eliminated Oct. 13 when a state utilities commission rate increase order goes into effect.

The commission order, amending an earlier rate increase, provides, in effect, that no round-trip fares will obtain on trips of less than 200 miles in each direction.

Another amendment, also effective Oct. 13, provides what amounts to a 20 per cent increase in commuter fares.

Meanwhile, the commission was expected to follow the example of the interstate commerce commission and grant railroads operating in Ohio a 10 per cent intrastate freight rate boost.

VANDENBERG IN HOSPITAL

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 9—Michigan Republican Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg today entered Butterworth hospital in Grand Rapids, Mich., for "a rest." A hospital spokesman explained that the senatorial foreign authority was "not really ill."

FLAGS TO FLY AT HALF MAST ALL DAY FRIDAY

Period Of Reverent Silence Decreed As First Bodies Arrive In U. S.

Flying of flags at half-mast, and a period of reverent silence at 12 noon, Friday, will mark Circleville's observance of the arrival at San Francisco, Calif., of World War II overseas dead.

Mayor Ben H. Gordon issued an official proclamation, Thursday, calling on all citizens to participate in this tribute to the nation's heroes.

The mayor's proclamation also pertains to Oct. 25 when the second shipment is scheduled to arrive at New York City.

TO PAY tribute to the two arrivals the Lockbourne Army Air Base will join with other Ninth Air Force installations. The ceremonies at Lockbourne, Oct. 10 and again Oct. 25, will consist primarily of the flying of the flag at half-mast, and the firing of a 21-gun salute with one minute intervals between each volley at high noon.

Colonel Benjamin O. Davis, Jr., commanding officer at the Lockbourne Army Air Base, said it was desired that all citizens of the surrounding areas be made cognizant of the significance of this special observance.

Mayor Gordon's proclamation follows:

WHEREAS, the first shipment of World War II dead from overseas is scheduled to arrive Oct. 10 at San Francisco, Calif., and

WHEREAS, the second shipment of World War II dead from overseas is scheduled to arrive Oct. 25 at New York City, and

WHEREAS, it is fitting and proper that reverent tribute should be expressed by the citizenry to the memory of our nation's fallen heroes,

THEREFORE, I, Ben H. Gordon, Mayor of the City of Circleville, Ohio, on this 9th day of October, 1947, do hereby urge that all residents of Circleville fly flags at half-mast on Oct. 10

LABOR TROUBLE MAY HAVE HIT POLICY RACKET

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 9 — Labor troubles may have hit the numbers racket in Cincinnati.

However, police were inclined to discount rumors that the number writers were "on strike" and were refusing to write further policy slips because of a cut in their commissions from 30 to 25 per cent.

If the rumor is true, the operators can, like other business, blame "increased costs." With business lagging and the competition getting stiffer, some of the operators raised their payoffs from 500-to-1 to 650-to-1—and cut the commissions of the writers to offset the increase.

BRITISH FEAR NEWS LEAK ON BRIDAL GOWN

LONDON, Oct. 9—British court circles declared today that if details of Princess Elizabeth's bridal gown leak out prior to her wedding day the present style will be scrapped and another designed in its place.

The British press yesterday expressed dissatisfaction over a Buckingham palace edict imposing secrecy on the bridal gown and going-away costume.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9—The Honda Knot came within a day's sailing distance of America's shores today, and the Army prepared to notify more than 3,000 homes across the nation this afternoon that their fallen loved ones are aboard the approaching transport.

All was in readiness in San Francisco and nearby cities to welcome with solemn tribute the vanguard of thousands of American World War II dead being returned from the global battle theaters.

At noon tomorrow this first contingent of the homecoming heroes—the remains of 3,028 men who gave their lives in the Pacific conflict—will arrive aboard the Honda Knot in San Francisco Bay to receive their grateful country's homage.

In a last-day change of plans, army authorities announced that the names of the "passengers (deceased)"—as the men aboard the Honda Knot are officially listed—will begin going out by wire at noon today to 15 distribution centers in all parts of the country.

THESE CENTERS, charged with the task of delivering the war dead to their families, will then start telegraphing the next-of-kin, notifying them their loved ones are aboard the transport and soon will come home to their last resting places.

Memorial ceremonies to be held in San Francisco and other bay cities tomorrow will honor the men as returning heroes in behalf of the whole nation.

Saturday six of the dead—one belonging to each branch of the service and one civilian—will lie in state anonymously in the spacious rotunda of San Francisco's huge city hall.

NEW TRIAL DENIED IN RECKLESS DRIVING CASE

Overruling a new trial motion filed by Haldy Winfough, 70, Orient, convicted of reckless driving Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland Thursday fined the motorist $25 and costs.

160-MILE WIND SCREAMING OVER HISTORIC ISLE

estimated 300 U. S. Air Force and coast guard personnel were on Iwo when the typhoon roared in at 6 a. m. yesterday.

• • •

THE MESSAGE said further that a former landing ship now called the "Coaster Jim" was wallowing in serious trouble amid huge waves off Iwo, with her steering apparatus smashed, and that attempts to rescue her crew were in progress. The Navy reported however that the craft had ridden the storm through to safety.

Air force officers stationed on Guam were preparing to take off for Iwo momentarily.

The fierce winds diminished to velocities of 140, then 105 and latter 75 miles an hour as the typhoon cut across Iwo and howled westward toward Okinawa.

It was believed to be the same storm that swept across the northern tip of the Philippine island of Luzon a few days ago.

Reports from weather observers revealed that the shrieking typhoon started to skirt Iwo Jima, then swung back over the island where American forces fought one of their bloodiest battles of the war.

TONIGHT "Rosalind" was moving west-northwest at a speed of ten knots. Should it continue on this course, the typhoon would shortly strike the southeast part of Honshu, Japan's main island. Only a few weeks ago large sections of central and northern Honshu were deluged and devastated by typhoon-created floods.

The director exempted Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years day from the poultry-less Thursday order, but said he expected the institutions to abstain from meat or poultry on some other day in the same week.

The institutions serve more than 38,000 inmates and 4,000 employes each day.

Queen Elizabeth delivered last week.

The report followed the warning of minister for economic affairs Sir Stafford Cripps that unless Britain and Europe receive dollar aid from the U. S. "in the quite near future" a "descending spiral of depression" would hit many countries.

Cripps, speaking at his first news conference since becoming Britain's "economic czar," said the country faced further import cuts unless aid under the Marshall plan was assured by next June.

HE PROPOSED that a "useful form" of stop-gap aid would be American release of the 400 million dollars left of the original three and three-quarters billion dollars of the United States loan.

pelled missiles, it was explained, in that the compression needed for the continuous explosion requiring thrust is obtained from passage of the object through the atmosphere.

Ames pointed out that other jet-propelled devices use mechanically powered turbines to obtain compression.

He added that because of lack of compression the ram-jet does not operate until it has approached the speed of sound.

Thus, he said, it is necessary to launch the missile from an airplane, with additional speed attained through diving or from auxiliary rockets, or with rocket assistance from a launching platform.

Ames said the "Flying Stovepipes" launched so far were guided on a predetermined course before they were permitted to drop into the sea.

HE SAID the next step will be to provide the contrivances with an automatic pilot mechanism, enabling them to be directed by remote control from an airplane or land base.

The aerodynamics expert added that no plans have yet been made for piloted aircraft powered with ram-jets, but said the advisory committee in cooperation with the armed forces is experimenting with other types of rocket-powered supersonic aircraft.

One such development, he noted, is the XS-1, which has been flown at Muroc, Calif., after being launched from a B-29.

The rocket-powered XS-1, built to attain speeds up to 1,500 miles an hour, has not yet broken through the speed of sound, however.

The guilt clause against the three satellites was deferred until the Albanian and Bulgarian governments have answered whether they intend to adhere to the assembly's decision on Greece.

Encouraged by Vishinsky and Bebler, the Bulgarian and Albanian representatives flatly refused to ask their governments for their intentions on observing the assembly's decision.

The session adjourned in a blaze of Soviet bloc derision of the procedure employed in the meeting. The committee will take up the composition of the Balkan border watch commission today.

The deepening clash between the United States and Russia is further evident today in the postponement to next week of the general assembly plenary session, primarily because there is no solution to the dead-lock between India and the Soviet Ukraine for a security council seat.

160-MILE WIND SCREAMING OVER HISTORIC ISLE

estimated 300 U. S. Air Force and coast guard personnel were on Iwo when the typhoon roared in at 6 a. m. yesterday.

• • •

THE MESSAGE said further that a former landing ship now called the "Coaster Jim" was wallowing in serious trouble amid huge waves off Iwo, with her steering apparatus smashed, and that attempts to rescue her crew were in progress. The Navy reported however that the craft had ridden the storm through to safety.

Air force officers stationed on Guam were preparing to take off for Iwo momentarily.

The fierce winds diminished to velocities of 140, then 105 and latter 75 miles an hour as the typhoon cut across Iwo and howled westward toward Okinawa.

It was believed to be the same storm that swept across the northern tip of the Philippine island of Luzon a few days ago.

Reports from weather observers revealed that the shrieking typhoon started to skirt Iwo Jima, then swung back over the island where American forces fought one of their bloodiest battles of the war.

TONIGHT "Rosalind" was moving west-northwest at a speed of ten knots. Should it continue on this course, the typhoon would shortly strike the southeast part of Honshu, Japan's main island. Only a few weeks ago large sections of central and northern Honshu were deluged and devastated by typhoon-created floods.

OHIO INSTITUTIONS TO OBEY TRUMAN REQUEST

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9—Ohio's 26 welfare and penal institutions were ordered by Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood today to comply with President Truman's request for meatless Tuesdays and egg-less Thursdays.

Only hospital cases where specific diets are in effect were exempted from Sherwood's order, which demanded "strict compliance."

The director exempted Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years day from the poultry-less Thursday order, but said he expected the institutions to abstain from meat or poultry on some other day in the same week.

The institutions serve more than 38,000 inmates and 4,000 employes each day.

Queen Elizabeth delivered last week.

The report followed the warning of minister for economic affairs Sir Stafford Cripps that unless Britain and Europe receive dollar aid from the U. S. "in the quite near future" a "descending spiral of depression" would hit many countries.

Cripps, speaking at his first news conference since becoming Britain's "economic czar," said the country faced further import cuts unless aid under the Marshall plan was assured by next June.

HE PROPOSED that a "useful form" of stop-gap aid would be American release of the 400 million dollars left of the original three and three-quarters billion dollars of the United States loan.

PRICES PAID FARMERS REACH ALL-TIME HIGH

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9—Prices received by Ohio farmers soared to an all-time high in mid-September.

The Ohio crop reporting service reported today that corn reached $2.53 a bushel; oats $1.16, rye $2.35, hogs $27.60 a hundred, beef cattle $22.10, veal calves $25.50, and lambs $22.90.

The only commodities to drop were soybeans, potatoes and apples. Horse and wool prices remained about the same as in the previous month.

"Stovepipe" Hits 1,500 Mile Speed

pelled missiles, it was explained, in that the compression needed for the continuous explosion requiring thrust is obtained from passage of the object through the atmosphere.

Ames pointed out that other jet-propelled devices use mechanically powered turbines to obtain compression.

He added that because of lack of compression the ram-jet does not operate until it has approached the speed of sound.

Thus, he said, it is necessary to launch the missile from an airplane, with additional speed attained through diving or from auxiliary rockets, or with rocket assistance from a launching platform.

Ames said the "Flying Stovepipes" launched so far were guided on a predetermined course before they were permitted to drop into the sea.

HE SAID the next step will be to provide the contrivances with an automatic pilot mechanism, enabling them to be directed by remote control from an airplane or land base.

The aerodynamics expert added that no plans have yet been made for piloted aircraft powered with ram-jets, but said the advisory committee in cooperation with the armed forces is experimenting with other types of rocket-powered supersonic aircraft.

One such development, he noted, is the XS-1, which has been flown at Muroc, Calif., after being launched from a B-29.

The rocket-powered XS-1, built to attain speeds up to 1,500 miles an hour, has not yet broken through the speed of sound, however.

der commission. Nine lands abstained.

The guilt clause against the three satellites was deferred until the Albanian and Bulgarian governments have answered whether they intend to adhere to the assembly's decision on Greece.

Encouraged by Vishinsky and Bebler, the Bulgarian and Albanian representatives flatly refused to ask their governments for their intentions on observing the assembly's decision.

The session adjourned in a blaze of Soviet bloc derision of the procedure employed in the meeting. The committee will take up the composition of the Balkan border watch commission today.

The deepening clash between the United States and Russia is further evident today in the postponement to next week of the general assembly plenary session, primarily because there is no solution to the dead-lock between India and the Soviet Ukraine for a security council seat.

MANUFACTURERS PINS HOPE ON TRUMAN PLAN

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9—Procter and Gamble company president R. R. Deupree predicted today that the "government's conservation program will stabilize prices if not lower them."

The soap company executive's indorsement came at an annual stock-holders' meeting of the firm in Cincinnati.

Although reporting that his company had pioneered in the development of synthetic detergents, Deupree stated "there is small chance of synthetics replacing soap to any marked extent."

Deupree said synthetics are "marvelous in some fields, but limited in others."

PASTOR SOUNDS CONFIDENCE IN ROSE MIRACLE

STOCKPORT, England, Oct. 9—The Rev. James Turner today rebutted the observation of a Manchester university horticulturist that Stockport's "miracle of the roses" might be merely a "lucky accident."

Dr. F. W. Sansome referred to the 22 yellow roses in St. Mary's church which have remained unfaded on a statue of the Virgin Mary although they have not been watered for more than five months.

Father Turner's answer was: "It doesn't explain why hundreds of other roses placed in the church at intervals died with in a week or so."

The flowers were placed on the statue by seven-year-old Pauline Byrne after she was adjudged May queen. A report on the roses has been forwarded to the Vatican.

TAFT SEES TAX SLASH AS IMMEDIATE NEED

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 9—Tax reduction was considered by Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) Ohio today to be one of the first tasks that congress should consider when it reconvenes in Washington.

Taft voiced that opinion in an address yesterday before the Iowa Bankers Association in Des Moines. The Ohio senator called President Truman's veto of the tax reduction bill "a great mistake."

He warned: "There is some point at which high taxes must lead directly to socialism, and I think 30 per cent of the national income is perilously close to that point."

SUPER-SLEUTH SCHOOL PLANNED IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9—Final plans were made today for setting up of a "super-sleuth" school for the Cleveland police department under Federal Bureau of Investigation supervision.

Acting Safety Director Alvin J. Sutton revealed that this would be the first such training school ever attempted with FBI cooperation in a metropolitan city.

The school will consist of four courses a year of two and half weeks each. Thirty specially qualified police officers and men will be selected for each course.

Special agents of the FBI, FBI-trained Cleveland police and civilian specialists will make up the school's staff. The curriculum will consist of the latest advances in crime detection, law enforcement and crime prevention methods.

TAFT SEES TAX SLASH AS IMMEDIATE NEED

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 9—Tax reduction was considered by Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) Ohio today to be one of the first tasks that congress should consider when it reconvenes in Washington.

Taft voiced that opinion in an address yesterday before the Iowa Bankers Association in Des Moines. The Ohio senator called President Truman's veto of the tax reduction bill "a great mistake."

He warned: "There is some point at which high taxes must lead directly to socialism, and I think 30 per cent of the national income is perilously close to that point."

SUPER-SLEUTH SCHOOL PLANNED IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9—Final plans were made today for setting up of a "super-sleuth" school for the Cleveland police department under Federal Bureau of Investigation supervision.

Acting Safety Director Alvin J. Sutton revealed that this would be the first such training school ever attempted with FBI cooperation in a metropolitan city.

The school will consist of four courses a year of two and half weeks each. Thirty specially qualified police officers and men will be selected for each course.

Special agents of the FBI, FBI-trained Cleveland police and civilian specialists will make up the school's staff. The curriculum will consist of the latest advances in crime detection, law enforcement and crime prevention methods.

Australian slang is considered among the world's most colorful. It includes "bonzer" for swell; "tucker" for grub; "furphy" for baseless rumor, and "pozzle" for place. Words ending in "o" are favored. Thus "mucko" for sailor, "robo" for rabbit, "reffo" for refuge and "susso" for sustenance.

THE KREMLIN'S rulers are seen doubtful as to Russia's ability alone or with the help of the loyal members of its bloc to emerge victorious in any conflict that might develop with the western powers.

Therefore, a decision is believed to have been taken to use Communist parties abroad as the instrument for inciting the peoples of China and India as well as Europe against the United States if war should come.

Diplomats and political leaders in most instances do not think that Russia intends to provoke a conflict.

The Truman doctrine and the Marshall plan are having a far more profound effect among the people of Soviet satellite countries than is generally realized outside the iron curtain.

SPECIALISTS PUT BRAIN OF ROBOT PLANE TO TESTS

Air Force Insists Program Aims Chiefly At Making Flying Safer

CLINTON COUNTY ARMY AIRFIELD, Wilmington, Ohio, Oct. 9—They're putting the automatic brain of the "Big Push" through the Air Force clinic here today.

And the specialists are certain that their diagnosis and prescription, if properly followed, can eliminate in the future much of the "human error" factor which has been a contributing cause to so many military and commercial aviation tragedies in the past.

Actually, it's more of a summation of reports than a check-up, for the "big push"—otherwise known as the Air Force's big four-engined robot controlled Skymaster—late yesterday completed an 8,000-mile, push-button round-trip flight to England.

And, except for three landings on fields without proper homing equipment, the entire junket was by automatic flight.

Although political guessers and theorists have had a field day speculating about the plane's possible wartime use, the men who built its mechanical mind were chiefly concerned with something else.

"Our problem is to improve flying safety," said Colonel James M. Gillespie, chief of the all-weather flying division here, as he alighted wearily from the plane. "In that regard, the equipment was satisfactory and the trip went off without a hitch."

DRAMATICALLY underscoring the plane's elimination of "human error" was an incident on the final homeward leg.

Driven beyond its homing radio station some fifteen miles by a tailwind which had not been predicted by the weatherman in advance, the "Big Push" clicked the wheels in its mechanical mind, circled automatically and brought itself back on course for a perfect landing!

Previously, Colonel Ben S. Kelsey, automatic flight pioneer in the air force, had pointed out that the chief purpose of such experiments is to relieve the hard-pressed pilot of innumerable purely mechanical motions during times of crisis.

He added that almost all of the component parts of the robot plane are now available to military and commercial airlines. The secret of the "Big Push's" dramatic success, however, is its automatic brain or sequence selector which coordinates the various mechanical operations.

SUICIDE'S DOG KEEPS DEATH VIGIL

IN THE EARLY DAWN HOURS, a man, trailed by a tan mongrel dog, stood for a moment at the Chicago riverfront and slowly took off his hat and coat. Then he plunged in, refusing the aid of some passers-by. The police came and a patrol wagon took away the articles of apparel. No one seemed to notice the dog. But when the car reached the station, the mutt was just a few yards behind. In the above picture, he sniffs forlornly at a tattered hat. The suicide was not definitely identified. (International)

SATIRA TELLS HOW FEAR LED HER TO MURDER

Toledo Dancer Gambles Her Freedom On Claim Of Attack By Mee

HAVANA, Oct. 9 — Patricia Schmidt gambled her freedom today on a claim that brutal treatment and death threats by Chicago lawyer John Lester Mee forced her to kill him in self-defense.

Frightened and sobbing, the Toledo, O., nightclub dancer re-enacted before a crowded courtroom the fatal shooting of her lover aboard his yacht Satira—Patricia's professional name — in Havana harbor.

The case was adjourned after Patricia showed how she seized a .22 caliber pistol from a drawer in the yacht's cabin and fired when the infuriated Mee allegedly lunged toward her with a sword used in her "toreador" dance.

Testimony will be resumed Tuesday.

Alternately sullen and tearful under grilling by the prosecutor, sloe-eyed Patricia said:

"HE HIT me when I tried to get out.

"He struck me on the head and shoulders and knocked me down to the floor.

"He kicked me a few times, brutally, trying to hurt me."

The dark-skinned dancer testified their idyllic tropical romance became a nightmare that culminated in the fatal shooting April 8 after she learned that Mee already was married.

She claimed Mee made her a virtual "prisoner" aboard the yacht, and added:

"He followed me, censored my mail and never let me out of his sight."

Patricia, who claims to be half Oriental, said that Mee threatened to kill her on several occasions, and on the day of the fatal shooting she feared he would carry out the threat when he allegedly shouted:

"I always have told you that I would kill you. You know too much about me.

"This time I mean it."

The 22-year-old girl told the court Mee's violence increased when she attempted to pack her clothes and leave the yacht.

She explained:

"Naturally I was afraid since he was a man of terrific strength."

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

How to Tell You're Getting Old

Doc Walters gave me this formula: It's a sure-fire sign you're getting old when you resent other people having a good time.

And the Doc means it hasn't much to do with age. There are old folks in our town who get a big kick out of seeing other people enjoy themselves—seems to keep them young in spirit, with a twinkle in their eyes!

And there are some others who resent the young folks going fishing; who feel that community games and dances are just a waste of time; or who criticize temperate people for enjoying a mellow glass of beer with friends.

They're often well-intentioned folks, too. But from where I sit, the minute we criticize our neighbors for enjoying wholesome pleasures—like a game of horseshoes, a glass of beer, or an afternoon's fishing—it's a sure sign we're growing old (in spirit anyway) no matter what our age is.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

How to Tell You're Getting Old

Doc Walters gave me this formula: It's a sure-fire sign you're getting old when you resent other people having a good time.

And the Doc means it hasn't much to do with age. There are old folks in our town who get a big kick out of seeing other people enjoy themselves—seems to keep them young in spirit, with a twinkle in their eyes!

And there are some others who resent the young folks going fishing; who feel that community games and dances are just a waste of time; or who criticize temperate people for enjoying a mellow glass of beer with friends.

They're often well-intentioned folks, too. But from where I sit, the minute we criticize our neighbors for enjoying wholesome pleasures—like a game of horseshoes, a glass of beer, or an afternoon's fishing—it's a sure sign we're growing old (in spirit anyway) no matter what our age is.

RHODE ISLAND'S SHIFT

THE CHOICE of Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island as chairman of the Democratic national committee points to the major political shift that has taken place in this industrial state.

Rhode Island used to be steadfastly Republican. The Republican Senate leader for many years, Nelson W. Aldrich, was a Rhode Islander, not the least part of whose strength was the fact that he never had to spend time on political fence-building, but could count on re-election almost automatically.

The change began in 1928 when Al Smith carried the state. The great depression completed the process, and since then Rhode Island has been as reliably Democratic as Tennessee. Only in 1938 did the Republicans elect a governor, and he was defeated the next time. Even in the dark Democratic years of 1942 and 1946 Rhode Island stood firm.

The change is located by some in the political sentiments of the state's French-Canadian voters, who used to be Republican and are thought to have shifted. Probably the explanation is broader. Rhode Island is primarily a state of cities, and since the New Deal the cities have been the bulwarks of Democratic strength.

ROAD-BUILDING DELAYS

PEACE TIME road building projects, so freely promised a few years ago, are still a long way from reality. There are many reasons. One is the shrinking buying power of the dollar. Costs of material and labor already high, go no lower. Although Congress annually authorizes one or two billion dollars for its share of the nation's highway construction and maintenance, this isn't much against present inflationary tendencies, when divided up among 48 states. Also there is a discouraging amount of red tape, some of it left over from war time's troubles, which states and cities must untangle before they can qualify for appropriations. Further, Washington is tending to save up road-building money against the time when jobs may becoms scarce again.

In the meantime any motorist who does considerable traveling is impressed with the crowded condition of the highways, particularly near large industrial centers. The passenger car in such areas must push its way through long lines of trucks. With high wages, there is naturally a continued clamor for automobiles so that vehicular traffic of all kinds is on the increase.

Highways, apparently, will continue crowded for some time to come.

Probably all nations, like all individuals, have about the same ratio of good and bad according to their opportunities, but it's hard to make the rest of us think so.

The fellow who makes a liberal contribution to a community fund has an inalienable right to puff out his own chest.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

During the war, a small group of newspapermen and publicists in this country warned the nation that this country was buying itself an enemy. They were attacked as Fascists; smeared as unpatriotic; in some instances even regarded as seditionists. Some of them were indicted and tried. The fact is that we did buy ourselves an enemy and that they have now declared themselves as such by a public manifesto signed in Poland and they have opened an office in Belgrade to do us damage. The purchase price was $11,681,000,000. That is what we gave to Soviet Russia as a gift. We have given her statellites an additional $1,287,644,000 as gifts.

Altogether, the United States poured $66,000,000,000 into Europe and elsewhere assisting her allies during the war. No country assisted the United States. Lend-Lease is the only instance of any return whatsoever, a total of $7,811,000,000 of reverse Lend-Lease against this country's contribution of $48,601,000,000. Soviet Russia contributed a mere $2,213,000 of reverse Lend-Lease against America's aid to her of $11,681,000,000—the Russian return being a mere token.

The United States put up 70 percent of UNRRA, amounting to $2,279,000,000; the Russians did not put up anything. Yet UNRRA was so manipulated that few of the peoples of Europe know what the United States did for them and many of them, particularly in the countries behind the Iron Curtain, believe that it was really Soviet Russia that assisted them. Every effort of this country to stabilize the economic life of Europe has met with antagonism. The most recent, the Marshall Plan, which calls for a charitable contribution of at least $15,000,000,000, and probably $22,000,000,000 at great sacrifice to the American people, is being attacked everywhere in Europe and Asia as "American Imperialism," as "Dollar Slavery." Even our compassion is misrepresented by Soviet Russia and her agents.

These are the cold facts of our purchase of an enemy. Dollar diplomacy, as practiced from 1938 to 1947, defeated Hitler but brought us face to face with a fiercer, more dangerous, an equally if not more unscrupulous enemy. If you wish to appraise the value of $66,000,000,000, compare it with the total national income of the American people, which was $71,000,000,000 in 1937, $64,000,000,000, in 1938, $70,000,000,000 in 1939. It was as low as $40,000,000,000 in 1932. In other words, what this country gave to the world is not hay by any system of calculation. It is the irreplaceable natural resources of our land and the labor of our people. And we shall probably never get one cent of it back. If to that are added the contributions under the Marshall Plan, America's gift to its allies, so-called friendly and peace-loving nations, will come close to $100,000,000,000.

When to that is added the fact that the war cost us $300,000,000,000 it stands clear that this comparatively medium sized nation of 145,000,000 people has been handing out a tremendous amount of its wealth and that a very large part of the human race has been the willing recipient of its charity. In fact, there seems to be no objection to bleeding this country white until perhaps we die of productive anemia.

Surgery, Well-Fitted Shoes, Give Relief in Foot Ailment

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AS long ago as 1876, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania described a peculiar pain which was confined to the forepart of the foot. Though limited to a small area, the pain was so agonizing that the patient would stop in the street, remove his shoe and grasp the foot in the hand in an attempt to gain relief.

Today, we call this condition metatarsalgia and it is only recently that we have gained any idea as to what causes it. The professor of 1876, who described it so well, believed it to be due to pressure on one of the joints of the toes, but later investigators are convinced that pressure on a nerve in the same area is the real cause.

Pain Often Severe

The pain is often so severe as to be excruciating. It appears only while walking and tends to pass into the fourth toe. Sometimes there is swelling of the front part of the foot.

In the early stages of this condition, there may be some increased sensitivity of the skin with a slight redness and some swelling in the sole of the foot close to the bones of affected toes. Usually there is no tenderness, though the pain may be made worse by bending the toes backward.

Improper Shoes

It is thought that the wearing of improper shoes may be a contributory cause for this disorder. In any event, the pain is often so severe that treatment must be promptly carried out.

In some cases, the condition may be relieved by rest and the wearing of a properly fitting shoe in which there is a pad to support the front part of the foot. A bar of leather may be put across the middle of the sole of the shoe. But these corrections should only be made under proper guidance.

If these measures do not relieve the disorder, an operation is often necessary. In one type of operation, it is suggested by some surgeons that the heads of the front metatarsal bone be cut away. Others do not advise this, but think that the cutting of small nerves which seem to be affected may suffice to bring about permanent relief.

Other Conditions

Pain in the front of the foot may be produced by conditions other than metatarsalgia. For example, there may be arthritis or inflammation between the joints of the metatarsal bones and the bones of the toes.

Sometimes there is pain in the front part of the foot following severe exercise such as tennis. Bruising of the bony surfaces in the joints or inflammation of the tendons which connect muscles with bones will also cause pain.

In most of these conditions, relief is rapidly brought about by rest and the application of heat, and support of the front part of the foot as described above.

Of course, when pain in the foot occurs an examination by an orthopedic specialist is advisable. X-rays can be taken and a definite diagnosis made, and the most effective measures for relieving the condition may be employed.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

MARTIN SAID curtly, "If you're ready, Paul."

Paul saluted smartly and said, "Quite, sir."

But the swift glance that passed between him and Greg was touched with humor, as he swung open the door and stood at attention.

Lissa turned back for a parting word with Gail.

"Do let me hear from you, darling," she said quickly, and her eyes barely flicked Greg. "And when you and this absurd young man patch up your silly quarrel, I shall see to it that you have a suitable trousseau."

Gail caught her breath and her face burned. Greg looked straight at Lissa and his eyes were cold and inimical.

"Don't be silly, Lissa," said Gail hurriedly, carefully avoiding Greg. "The only trousseau I shall ever need is smart dark clothes, practical enough for the office. I may even start wearing white linen uniforms—the patients would probably trust me more."

"Nonsense, you're much too pretty to wear uniforms. In a uniform you would be dangerously devastating," said Lissa. She kissed Gail lightly and let Martin help her into the car.

With a final exchange of goodbys, the big car slid down the drive and the others watched until it was hidden by the trees.

It was Norah who broke the silence.

"Gosh!" she breathed youthfully. "She's quite a person, isn't she?"

Charles said, "She's relinquishing the trust fund, Norah, returning it to me."

"What?" Norah was the only one who had not been present at that session, though Gail had not realized it until now. "Uncle Charles—honestly?"

Charles nodded and put his arm about Kate, who drew near to him.

"It was her own idea, and Kincaid seemed to approve," he said. "And since the money means so little to her now—"

Wide-eyed, Norah breathed, "Why—we're rich! Gosh!"

Her awe was so honest, so unassuming, that Gail felt a little wrench at her heart. Nothing had so sharply marked the contrast between her old pre-Twin Oaks life and this—that the money that had seemed so inadequate to Lissa was obviously a vast sum to these whom she, Gail, held so dear.

"All the things we can do," Norah breathed. She turned about and eyed the old house with gleaming eyes, and then she laughed and confessed, "But now that we can tear it down or turn it around or upside down, I'm not sure I want to. After all, it has sheltered us."

"And like the faithful old friend it is, it deserves to be prettied up a bit," said Charles firmly.

They were so happily absorbed that they did not notice when Gail slipped away. Her heart was heavy as lead in her breast; she would so have enjoyed being a partner in all the activities of remodeling the old house, bringing out its latent beauty and making it comfortable and attractive. But she had lost her right to any partnership in the place; they would be glad to have her if she wanted to stay, but she knew forlornly that Greg didn't want her, and she could not bear to do anything that might make Greg uncomfortable or dissatisfied. Now that Paul was coming back, now that there would be money for farm machinery, Greg and Paul could run the place with all ease in the world. And she, herself, must go back to her independence—which suddenly seemed nothing less than desolate loneliness and heart hunger.

Her feet had carried her without her being aware of any intention, to the little house, and for a moment she looked at it through a shining mist of tears. She was lost in bitter-sweet dreams when, like a continuation of her dream, the door opened and Greg came out on the flat steps.

For a moment, so sure was she that she was merely imagining all this, that she smiled at him tremulously, and even put out her hand to him in a little, lovely gesture of surrender. But when he took a step toward her and the mist cleared from her eyes and she saw that he was real, she was instantly on guard.

"Oh—hello," she said lamely, hurrying to say the first words that came to her mind. "I was—taking a walk."

"So was I," said Greg, and his mouth was tight and his eyes bitter. "I haven't liked myself much these last few days. Thought I'd try to come to terms with myself, even though I can never hope to make peace with you, after the way I've treated you."

Gail had the startled feeling that she had taken a step in the dark and plunged into space. The solid earth seemed to have been whipped from under her feet and she could only stare at him, her eyes wide in the drained pallor of her face.

"I don't blame you," said Greg grimly, misinterpreting her bewildered astonishment. "I deserve nothing but to have you turn your back on me and refuse ever to speak to me again. I have been lower than a duck's belly, going around heaving nasty words at you and trying to kid myself they didn't hurt me more than you. I'd like, though, just to tell you that I'll never get over being ashamed and feeling that I should be shot, because I didn't have sense enough to know that a girl with eyes like yours couldn't possibly be anything but the finest, sweetest, most honest creature alive."

Her whisper came, small, broken, a mere breath.

"Greg!"

He took a step closer to her, a look of dawning wonder in his eyes. But before he could touch her, he thrust his hands deep in his pockets and turned sharply away.

"Don't cry, darling," he said huskily. "I don't deserve it. But I loved you, Gail. I love you now, I'll always love you."

Gail said unsteadily, "Then—then that's all that matters, Greg."

For a stunned moment he stood stock-still and then he turned on her sharply, his face quite white behind his sun-bronze.

"What did you say?" he asked, as though he could not believe his ears.

The tears were slipping down her face, but she brushed them away childishly with the back of her hand and her smile was tremulous.

"I said I've always loved you, too, Greg. I adore you. I—can't ever stop."

Long before she had finished she was in his arms, held close and hard against him, her tear-wet face hidden against his shoulder, her arms holding him tightly, as though she would never again let him go.

He held her for a long moment, and then he tilted her face, his fingers beneath her chin. His voice shook with a very passion of tenderness as he said, "Sweetheart! Darling—DARLING. Oh, my sweet, I can't believe it—that you could forgive me."

"Who talks about forgiveness when two people are in love?" she said with a soft, eager rush of words. "You had a perfect right to think me a heel, darling—and other unpleasant things. After all, you'd spent so much time despising me before ever we met."

He kissed her, his mouth eager and ardent, and cradled her in his arms and said softly, "Heart's treasure—we've wasted so much time and it's all my fault. Dearest, I do love you so terribly."

There was a long, lovely interval of blessed quiet, when it was enough just to be here like this, close in each other's arms, the bright and shining garment of their love wrapping them securely, always and forever, against any fear or danger or loss.

And then he said huskily, "Darling, I can have the house finished, ready for occupancy, in another week. Will you marry me then?"

She was flushed and radiant, the marks of tears still on her cheeks, her mouth a soft scarlet flower kissed into exquisite perfection as she looked up at him.

"Well, I've never believed in long engagements," she said with sweet audacity. "But if that's the best you can do, I guess I'll have to wait."

His arms tightened about her and his eyes were shining as he bent his head and set his mouth on hers in a kiss of ineffable tenderness and joy.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, October 9

THERE are indications that exceptional promises for unusual accomplishments, in new fields of operation or through development of fresh skills or original ideas, holding prospect of pleasant relations or lucrative rewards may be in the offing. However the inclination to hold over romantic or emotional activities, even though at a loss of prestige and financial status, is also among the possibilities. Discrimination as to the happier choice may be the answer to the immortal "to be or not to be."

On the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is have sustained openings and lure for gainful, progressive, productive and pleasant contacts and associations, probably in fresh avenues or in new environs. But prospects in purely personal, romantic or creative compulsions may beget disinclination to change or to sever old ties or commitments, although the culminations be of radical and long-term advantage. The moment of choice is at hand.

A child born on this day has excellent talents, skills with alluring prospects or their expression, but may be pulled two ways in making decisions; romance vs realism is the issue.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOCATION IS DECISIVE

LOCATION of your honor cards—whether to the right or to the left of the main hostile honors—decides to a large extent how potent they are as trick-takers. If you get last whack at the other fellow's forces, your own can be quite powerful. But if he can have the last say in playing on your big cards with his, yours may be reduced to ineptness. That factor of location should always be considered carefully in deciding whether or not to double an opposing contract, but plenty of otherwise fair players seem to pay no attention to it.

You will seldom see a more unsound double than that, since East could tell from the bidding that South had very few cards in the majors and also held considerable diamonds to the left of the K-J. South could have made his contract against any defense, if he had guessed club and diamond plays just right, though he could have been set if he guessed them wrongly. With the aid of East's double, however, he could hardly fail to make his contract, and a later fortuitous guess in clubs gave him an extra trick.

West took the first trick with the spade J and South ruffed the 9. Declarer led to the heart A and because of the double finessed the diamond 8, then the Q, and cleared out East's K with the A. Knowing East as a wild doubler and also that completely trickless hands are rare, South now decided to count on West for the club Q. He bottled up that card by leading the 10, finessing the J, scoring the K, returning with a heart ruff and laying down the club A.

If East had kept his mouth shut after the opening bid, South should have finessed the Q on the first round of diamonds. Later he might have played East for the club Q. Who knows? If he did both of those things, his contract would have been beaten. Instead he got a swell mess of extra points because of East's largesse.

European Aid May Be Met Without a Special Session | Finletter Report to Urge U. S. Aviation Expansion

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Capitol observers are swinging around to the belief that there will be no special session of Congress to provide stop-gap aid for hungry Europe. Instead, what is more likely to happen is that the four key congressional committees will hammer out a program to be presented to Congress immediately after it convenes in its next regular session in January.

The committees will not be able to work out any legislative program until December, and, with a 10-day notice necessary for the convening of a special session, it is believed that President Truman and the leadership will agree to wait until after the first of the year.

Washington

However, there is a distinct possibility that, with congressional committee approval of the emergency relief program, the administration will advance funds to tide Europe over from Dec. 1, when present funds will run out, until such time as the new program can be legislated and put into action.

The Senate foreign relations committee and the House foreign affairs committee may draw up a tentative emergency aid bill, however.

This bill would be based on the president's estimate that 580 million dollars will be needed to carry western Europe through March.

It is unlikely that, even if they chose, the committees could complete authorizing legislation until December.

That would mean that even if a special session were called—now not in the cards—the two Houses would hardly pass the bill and vote the necessary appropriation measures before Christmas.

To warrant a special session, Mr. Truman would have to convince Congress that bleak starvation and no alternative faces Europe.

● FINLETTER COMMISSION—The Finletter commission, appointed by President Truman to recommend future American aviation policy, will urge unprecedented peace-time development of civil and military flying and expansion of aeronautical research.

The commission, headed by Thomas K. Finletter and numbering outstanding Americans like Henry Ford III and Publisher Palmer Hoyt, began three weeks of public hearings Sept. 15, during which every facet of aviation was to be examined—from the rural flying school operator to the biggest plane builder.

The final report, to be handed the president early next year, will be one of the most significant documents in United States history.

Its historic value will transcend that of the Morrow board report in 1926, which sparked the United States in its first integrated air program.

Whether the value of the Finletter report is academic or concrete depends on whether Congress accepts the recommendations it makes and puts them into force.

United States air strength is declining steadily and development of new planes, on which air power depends, is restricted by reduced appropriations.

Finletter and his colleagues decided that by making all procedure public a wave of popular support for aviation as military and economic insurance might be caused to break over Congress when the final report is made.

● BI-PARTISAN FOREIGN POLICY—High ranking Democrats are predicting that the bi-partisan foreign policy will survive the 1948 presidential election.

One of the top Democrats, who is in an excellent position to judge, forecast that while the rank and file of Senators on both sides blast away at their opponents' views, the attempt for legislative unity will persist. The Democratic leader said:

Unity Despite Turmoil

"The bi-partisan policy will come through all right.

"On the outside, it will appear to be cracking at the seams. Maybe the turmoil will be so loud that it will sound as though it is flying apart.

"But when the smoke clears away and Congress convenes in 1949, we will find that we still are sticking together on foreign affairs."

RHODE ISLAND'S SHIFT

THE CHOICE of Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island as chairman of the Democratic national committee points to the major political shift that has taken place in this industrial state.

Rhode Island used to be steadfastly Republican. The Republican Senate leader for many years, Nelson W. Aldrich, was a Rhode Islander, not the least part of whose strength was the fact that he never had to spend time on political fence-building, but could count on re-election almost automatically.

The change began in 1928 when Al Smith carried the state. The great depression completed the process, and since then Rhode Island has been as reliably Democratic as Tennessee. Only in 1938 did the Republicans elect a governor, and he was defeated the next time. Even in the dark Democratic years of 1942 and 1946 Rhode Island stood firm.

The change is located by some in the political sentiments of the state's French-Canadian voters, who used to be Republican and are thought to have shifted. Probably the explanation is broader. Rhode Island is primarily a state of cities, and since the New Deal the cities have been the bulwarks of Democratic strength.

ROAD-BUILDING DELAYS

PEACE TIME road building projects, so freely promised a few years ago, are still a long way from reality. There are many reasons. One is the shrinking buying power of the dollar. Costs of material and labor already high, go no lower. Although Congress annually authorizes one or two billion dollars for its share of the nation's highway construction and maintenance, this isn't much against present inflationary tendencies, when divided up among 48 states. Also there is a discouraging amount of red tape, some of it left over from war time's troubles, which states and cities must untangle before they can qualify for appropriations. Further, Washington is tending to save up road-building money against the time when jobs may becoms scarce again.

In the meantime any motorist who does considerable traveling is impressed with the crowded condition of the highways, particularly near large industrial centers. The passenger car in such areas must push its way through long lines of trucks. With high wages, there is naturally a continued clamor for automobiles so that vehicular traffic of all kinds is on the increase.

Highways, apparently, will continue crowded for some time to come.

Probably all nations, like all individuals, have about the same ratio of good and bad according to their opportunities, but it's hard to make the rest of us think so.

The fellow who makes a liberal contribution to a community fund has an inalienable right to puff out his own chest.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

During the war, a small group of newspapermen and publicists in this country warned the nation that this country was buying itself an enemy. They were attacked as Fascists; smeared as unpatriotic; in some instances even regarded as seditionists. Some of them were indicted and tried. The fact is that we did buy ourselves an enemy and that they have now declared themselves as such by a public manifesto signed in Poland and they have opened an office in Belgrade to do us damage. The purchase price was $11,681,000,000. That is what we gave to Soviet Russia as a gift. We have given her statellites an additional $1,287,644,000 as gifts.

Altogether, the United States poured $66,000,000,000 into Europe and elsewhere assisting her allies during the war. No country assisted the United States. Lend-Lease is the only instance of any return whatsoever, a total of $7,811,000,000 of reverse Lend-Lease against this country's contribution of $48,601,000,000. Soviet Russia contributed a mere $2,213,000 of reverse Lend-Lease against America's aid to her of $11,681,000,000—the Russian return being a mere token.

The United States put up 70 percent of UNRRA, amounting to $2,279,000,000; the Russians did not put up anything. Yet UNRRA was so manipulated that few of the peoples of Europe know what the United States did for them and many of them, particularly in the countries behind the Iron Curtain, believe that it was really Soviet Russia that assisted them. Every effort of this country to stabilize the economic life of Europe has met with antagonism. The most recent, the Marshall Plan, which calls for a charitable contribution of at least $15,000,000,000, and probably $22,000,000,000 at great sacrifice to the American people, is being attacked everywhere in Europe and Asia as "American Imperialism," as "Dollar Slavery." Even our compassion is misrepresented by Soviet Russia and her agents.

These are the cold facts of our purchase of an enemy. Dollar diplomacy, as practiced from 1938 to 1947, defeated Hitler but brought us face to face with a fiercer, more dangerous, an equally if not more unscrupulous enemy. If you wish to appraise the value of $66,000,000,000, compare it with the total national income of the American people, which was $71,000,000,000 in 1937, $64,000,000,000, in 1938, $70,000,000,000 in 1939. It was as low as $40,000,000,000 in 1932. In other words, what this country gave to the world is not hay by any system of calculation. It is the irreplaceable natural resources of our land and the labor of our people. And we shall probably never get one cent of it back. If to that are added the contributions under the Marshall Plan, America's gift to its allies, so-called friendly and peace-loving nations, will come close to $100,000,000,000.

When to that is added the fact that the war cost us $300,000,000,000 it stands clear that this comparatively medium sized nation of 145,000,000 people has been handing out a tremendous amount of its wealth and that a very large part of the human race has been the willing recipient of its charity. In fact, there seems to be no objection to bleeding this country white until perhaps we die of productive anemia.

Surgery, Well-Fitted Shoes, Give Relief in Foot Ailment

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

AS long ago as 1876, a professor at the University of Pennsylvania described a peculiar pain which was confined to the forepart of the foot. Though limited to a small area, the pain was so agonizing that the patient would stop in the street, remove his shoe and grasp the foot in the hand in an attempt to gain relief.

Today, we call this condition metatarsalgia and it is only recently that we have gained any idea as to what causes it. The professor of 1876, who described it so well, believed it to be due to pressure on one of the joints of the toes, but later investigators are convinced that pressure on a nerve in the same area is the real cause.

Pain Often Severe

The pain is often so severe as to be excruciating. It appears only while walking and tends to pass into the fourth toe. Sometimes there is swelling of the front part of the foot.

In the early stages of this condition, there may be some increased sensitivity of the skin with a slight redness and some swelling in the sole of the foot close to the bones of affected toes. Usually there is no tenderness, though the pain may be made worse by bending the toes backward.

Improper Shoes

It is thought that the wearing of improper shoes may be a contributory cause for this disorder. In any event, the pain is often so severe that treatment must be promptly carried out.

In some cases, the condition may be relieved by rest and the wearing of a properly fitting shoe in which there is a pad to support the front part of the foot. A bar of leather may be put across the middle of the sole of the shoe. But these corrections should only be made under proper guidance.

If these measures do not relieve the disorder, an operation is often necessary. In one type of operation, it is suggested by some surgeons that the heads of the front metatarsal bone be cut away. Others do not advise this, but think that the cutting of small nerves which seem to be affected may suffice to bring about permanent relief.

Other Conditions

Pain in the front of the foot may be produced by conditions other than metatarsalgia. For example, there may be arthritis or inflammation between the joints of the metatarsal bones and the bones of the toes.

Sometimes there is pain in the front part of the foot following severe exercise such as tennis. Bruising of the bony surfaces in the joints or inflammation of the tendons which connect muscles with bones will also cause pain.

In most of these conditions, relief is rapidly brought about by rest and the application of heat, and support of the front part of the foot as described above.

Of course, when pain in the foot occurs an examination by an orthopedic specialist is advisable. X-rays can be taken and a definite diagnosis made, and the most effective measures for relieving the condition may be employed.

M. M.: Is the insulin used in mental cases a drug? If so, is it a hypnotic one?

Answer: Insulin is the secretion formed by the pancreas, a gland in the abdomen. It is needed so that the body may use sugar. Insulin is not a hypnotic drug.

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

MARTIN SAID curtly, "If you're ready, Paul."

Paul saluted smartly and said, "Quite, sir."

But the swift glance that passed between him and Greg was touched with humor, as he swung open the door and stood at attention.

Lissa turned back for a parting word with Gail.

"Do let me hear from you, darling," she said quickly, and her eyes barely flicked Greg. "And when you and this absurd young man patch up your silly quarrel, I shall see to it that you have a suitable trousseau."

Gail caught her breath and her face burned. Greg looked straight at Lissa and his eyes were cold and inimical.

"Don't be silly, Lissa," said Gail hurriedly, carefully avoiding Greg. "The only trousseau I shall ever need is smart dark clothes, practical enough for the office. I may even start wearing white linen uniforms—the patients would, probably trust me more."

"Nonsense, you're much too pretty to wear uniforms. In a uniform you would be dangerously devastating," said Lissa. She kissed Gail lightly and let Martin help her into the car.

With a final exchange of goodbys, the big car slid down the drive and the others watched until it was hidden by the trees.

It was Norah who broke the silence.

"Gosh!" she breathed youthfully. "She's quite a person, isn't she?"

Charles said, "She's relinquishing the trust fund, Norah, returning it to me."

"What?" Norah was the only one who had not been present at that session, though Gail had not realized it until now. "Uncle Charles—honestly?"

Charles nodded and put his arm about Kate, who drew near to him.

"It was her own idea, and Kincaid seemed to approve," he said. "And since the money means so little to her now—"

Wide-eyed, Norah breathed, "Why—we're rich! Gosh!"

Her awe was so honest, so unassuming, that Gail felt a little wrench at her heart. Nothing had so sharply marked the contrast between her old pre-Twin Oaks life and this—that the money that had seemed so inadequate to Lissa was obviously a vast sum to these whom she, Gail, held so dear.

"All the things we can do," Norah breathed. She turned about and eyed the old house with gleaming eyes, and then she laughed and confessed, "But now that we can tear it down or turn it around or upside down, I'm not sure I want to. After all, it has sheltered us."

"And like the faithful old friend it is, it deserves to be prettied up a bit," said Charles firmly.

They were so happily absorbed that they did not notice when Gail slipped away. Her heart was heavy as lead in her breast; she would so have enjoyed being a partner in all the activities of remodeling the old house, bringing out its latent beauty and making it comfortable and attractive. But she had lost her right to any partnership in the place; they would be glad to have her if she wanted to stay, but she knew forlornly that Greg didn't want her, and she could not bear to do anything that might make Greg uncomfortable or dissatisfied. Now that Paul was coming back, now that there would be money for farm machinery, Greg and Paul could run the place with all ease in the world. And she, herself, must go back to her independence—which suddenly seemed nothing less than desolate loneliness and heart hunger.

Her feet had carried her without her being aware of any intention, to the little house, and for a moment she looked at it through a shining mist of tears. She was lost in bitter-sweet dreams when, like a continuation of her dream, the door opened and Greg came out on the flat steps.

For a moment, so sure was she that she was merely imagining all this, that she smiled at him tremulously, and even put out her hand to him in a little, lovely gesture of surrender. But when he took a step toward her and the mist cleared from her eyes and she saw that he was real, she was instantly on guard.

"Oh—hello," she said lamely, hurrying to say the first words that came to her mind. "I was—taking a walk."

"So was I," said Greg, and his mouth was tight and his eyes bitter. "I haven't liked myself much these last few days. Thought I'd try to come to terms with myself, even though I can never hope to make peace with you, after the way I've treated you."

Gail had the startled feeling that she had taken a step in the dark and plunged into space. The solid earth seemed to have been whipped from under her feet and she could only stare at him, her eyes wide in the drained pallor of her face.

"I don't blame you," said Greg grimly, misinterpreting her bewildered astonishment. "I deserve nothing but to have you turn your back on me and refuse ever to speak to me again. I have been lower than a duck's belly, going around heaving nasty words at you and trying to kid myself they didn't hurt me more than you. I'd like, though, just to tell you that I'll never get over being ashamed and feeling that I should be shot, because I didn't have sense enough to know that a girl with eyes like yours couldn't possibly be anything but the finest, sweetest, most honest creature alive."

Her whisper came, small, broken, a mere breath.

"Greg!"

He took a step closer to her, a look of dawning wonder in his eyes. But before he could touch her, he thrust his hands deep in his pockets and turned sharply away.

"Don't cry, darling," he said huskily. "I don't deserve it. But I loved you, Gail. I love you now, I'll always love you."

Gail said unsteadily, "Then—then that's all that matters, Greg."

For a stunned moment he stood stock-still and then he turned on her sharply, his face quite white behind his sun-bronze.

"What did you say?" he asked, as though he could not believe his ears.

The tears were slipping down her face, but she brushed them away childishly with the back of her hand and her smile was tremulous.

"I said I've always loved you, too, Greg. I adore you. I—can't ever stop."

Long before she had finished she was in his arms, held close and hard against him, her tear-wet face hidden against his shoulder, her arms holding him tightly, as though she would never again let him go.

He held her for a long moment, and then he tilted her face, his fingers beneath her chin. His voice shook with a very passion of tenderness as he said, "Sweetheart! Darling—DARLING. Oh, my sweet, I can't believe it—that you could forgive me."

"Who talks about forgiveness when two people are in love?" she said with a soft, eager rush of words. "You had a perfect right to think me a heel, darling—and other unpleasant things. After all, you'd spent so much time despising me before ever we met."

He kissed her, his mouth eager and ardent, and cradled her in his arms and said softly, "Heart's treasure—we've wasted so much time and it's all my fault. Dearest, I do love you so terribly."

There was a long, lovely interval of blessed quiet, when it was enough just to be here like this, close in each other's arms, the bright and shining garment of their love wrapping them securely, always and forever, against any fear or danger or loss.

And then he said huskily, "Darling, I can have the house finished, ready for occupancy, in another week. Will you marry me then?"

She was flushed and radiant, the marks of tears still on her cheeks, her mouth a soft scarlet flower kissed into exquisite perfection as she looked up at him.

"Well, I've never believed in long engagements," she said with sweet audacity. "But if that's the best you can do, I guess I'll have to wait."

His arms tightened about her and his eyes were shining as he bent his head and set his mouth on hers in a kiss of ineffable tenderness and joy.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, October 9

THERE are indications that exceptional promises for unusual accomplishments, in new fields of operation or through development of fresh skills or original ideas, holding prospect of pleasant relations or lucrative rewards may be in the offing. However the inclination to hold over romantic or emotional activities, even though at a loss of prestige and financial status, is also among the possibilities. Discrimination as to the happier choice may be the answer to the immortal "to be or not to be."

On the Birthday

Those whose birthday it is have sustained openings and lure for gainful, progressive, productive and pleasant contacts and associations, probably in fresh avenues or in new environs. But prospects in purely personal, romantic or creative compulsions may beget disinclination to change or to sever old ties or commitments, although the culminations be of radical and long-term advantage. The moment of choice is at hand.

A child born on this day has excellent talents, skills with alluring prospects or their expression, but may be pulled two ways in making decisions; romance vs realism is the issue.

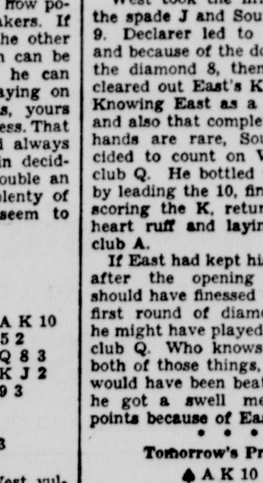

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOCATION IS DECISIVE

LOCATION of your honor cards—whether to the right or to the left of the main hostile honors—decides to a large extent how potent they are as trick-takers. If you get last whack at the other fellow's forces, your own can be quite powerful. But if he can have the last say in playing on your big cards with his, yours may be reduced to ineptness. That factor of location should always be considered carefully in deciding whether or not to double an opposing contract, but plenty of otherwise fair players seem to pay no attention to it.

You will seldom see a more unsound double than that, since East could tell from the bidding that South had very few cards in the majors and also held considerable diamonds to the left of the K-J. South could have made his contract against any defense, if he had guessed club and diamond plays just right, though he could have been set if he guessed them wrongly. With the aid of East's double, however, he could hardly fail to make his contract, and a later fortuitous guess in clubs gave him an extra trick.

West took the first trick with the spade J and South ruffed the 9. Declarer led to the heart A and because of the double finessed the diamond 8, then the Q, and cleared out East's K with the A. Knowing East as a wild doubler and also that completely trickless hands are rare, South now decided to count on West for the club Q. He bottled up that card by leading the 10, finessing the J, scoring the K, returning with a heart ruff and laying down the club A.

If East had kept his mouth shut after the opening bid, South should have finessed the Q on the first round of diamonds. Later he might have played East for the club Q. Who knows? If he did both of those things, his contract would have been beaten. Instead he got a swell mess of extra points because of East's largesse.

European Aid May Be Met Without a Special Session | Finletter Report to Urge U. S. Aviation Expansion

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Capitol observers are swinging around to the belief that there will be no special session of Congress to provide stop-gap aid for hungry Europe. Instead, what is more likely to happen is that the four key congressional committees will hammer out a program to be presented to Congress immediately after it convenes in its next regular session in January.

The committees will not be able to work out any legislative program until December, and, with a 10-day notice necessary for the convening of a special session, it is believed that President Truman and the leadership will agree to wait until after the first of the year.

Washington

However, there is a distinct possibility that, with congressional committee approval of the emergency relief program, the administration will advance funds to tide Europe over from Dec. 1, when present funds will run out, until such time as the new program can be legislated and put into action.

The Senate foreign relations committee and the House foreign affairs committee may draw up a tentative emergency aid bill, however.

This bill would be based on the president's estimate that 580 million dollars will be needed to carry western Europe through March.

It is unlikely that, even if they chose, the committees could complete authorizing legislation until December.

That would mean that even if a special session were called—now not in the cards—the two Houses would hardly pass the bill and vote the necessary appropriation measures before Christmas.

To warrant a special session, Mr. Truman would have to convince Congress that bleak starvation and no alternative faces Europe.

Unity Despite Turmoil

● FINLETTER COMMISSION—The Finletter commission, appointed by President Truman to recommend future American aviation policy, will urge unprecedented peace-time development of civil and military flying and expansion of aeronautical research.

The commission, headed by Thomas K. Finletter and numbering outstanding Americans like Henry Ford III and Publisher Palmer Hoyt, began three weeks of public hearings Sept. 15, during which every facet of aviation was to be examined—from the rural flying school operator to the biggest plane builder.

The final report, to be handed the president early next year, will be one of the most significant documents in United States history.

Its historic value will transcend that of the Morrow board report in 1926, which sparked the United States in its first integrated air program.

Whether the value of the Finletter report is academic or concrete depends on whether Congress accepts the recommendations it makes and puts them into force.

United States air strength is declining steadily and development of new planes, on which air power depends, is restricted by reduced appropriations.

Finletter and his colleagues decided that by making all procedure public a wave of popular support for aviation as military and economic insurance might be caused to break over Congress when the final report is made.

● BI-PARTISAN FOREIGN POLICY—High ranking Democrats are predicting that the bi-partisan foreign policy will survive the 1948 presidential election.

One of the top Democrats, who is in an excellent position to judge, forecast that while the rank and file of Senators on both sides blast away at their opponents' views, the attempt for legislative unity will persist. The Democratic leader said:

"The bi-partisan policy will come through all right.

"On the outside, it will appear to be cracking at the seams. Maybe the turmoil will be so loud that it will sound as though it is flying apart.

"But when the smoke clears away and Congress convenes in 1949, we will find that we still are sticking together on foreign affairs."

Dr. E. F. Marting Discusses Cancer

Parish House Setting For Meeting

Women's Auxiliary to the Pickaway County Medical Society sponsored Dr. Ester Fabrian Marting, Cincinnati, in an address on cancer, Wednesday evening in St. Philip's Parish house. Mrs. R. S. Hosler, Ashville, president, spoke to the group on behalf of the auxiliary. She said they planned to sponsor a constructive project, such as Dr. Marting's address once or twice a year for the citizens of Pickaway county and Circleville.

Mrs. Hosler gave a brief resume of the accomplishments of Dr. Marting and said that she had gained her knowledge from intensive study and research work from hospitals in New York City, Chicago, Illinois, Baltimore, Maryland, and Cincinnati, also hospitals in Europe. She said Dr. Marting is the wife of a physician, and mother of three small children.

Mrs. Walter F. Heine introduced Dr. Marting, who informally discussed the various phases of cancer. Her opening remarks were that "cancer is rated second in the cause of deaths in the United States, which is steadily increasing. Ten percent of all deaths every year are due to the malignant growth. Scientists estimate one out of eight persons have cancer." She stressed the importance of early diagnosis and urged at the very first signs of malignity to consult your family physician, at least once a year, or better—every six months for a general health examination.

"Attempts to eradicate cancer were made by the Egyptians, but the real understanding came with the microscope, approximately 100 years ago. Cancer cells are formed by abnormal growth in process of division. They have no purpose to perform and are outlaws of normal tissues and have no growth control."

In discussing tumors, she said, "they may arise from any 100 varieties in the body cells. Tumors are an overgrowth of cells and may either be simple or cancerous. They grow slowly and by expansion.

"Cancer of a malignant tumor grows rapidly, at the expense of normal tissues. It always is fatal, unless destroyed by an accepted form of treatment. Several factors as to the cause of cancer are known to medical science, but none of the origin. It may derive from chronic infection, repeated injury over a period of time.

"Pre-destination runs in certain families. Cancer," she said, "is not directly inherited, but the strain follows generations. Hormones have some influence, but are not the cause."

Dr. Marting continued, "repeated injuries in the same spot tend to cause cancer, but that is not an accepted rule of any medical scientist." In discussing the various types she noted that in the "early stages there is no pain and the malignancy may not be recognized until the latter stages."

An important statement that cancer is not contagious or infectious was brought to the attention of the group by Dr. Marting. "Early signs and symptons are much the same as caused by other diseases. Cancer is too complex a disease—it might be any bleeding from any body opening—any sore, that does not heal—any lump that does not disappear in a reasonable length of time. Diagnosis is up to the consulting physician. Cancer may also be found in persistent indigestion or any abnormality of the body's functions.

"Time is needed to determine, a person has cancer. The doctor in his diagnosis, uses X-ray, radium and surgery on their combination, which is the only effective remedy known to scientists today. When the case is in the advanced stages, neither of the forenamed are so effective. The easily accessible forms of cancr are the most curable, if treated vigorously and diagnosis made in the early stages. If determined early the patient stands a great chance of recovery—if late, very little.

"The overall cure rate in the United States now is only 15 percent. The important phase is for the public to become cancer conscious, forget their taboos, discuss the malignancy freely and progress will be made."

In conclusion she stressed the origin of the cancer society and told of Cancer Detective Clinics, now in operation in many of the larger cities. She summarized the importance of consulting the family physician for examinations.

Following her most intellectual discussion, Dr. Marting asked the audience to participate in a general open discussion on cancer.

Dr. E. F. Marting Discusses Cancer

Parish House Setting For Meeting

Women's Auxiliary to the Pickaway County Medical Society sponsored Dr. Ester Fabrian Marting, Cincinnati, in an address on cancer, Wednesday evening in St. Philip's Parish house. Mrs. R. S. Hosler, Ashville, president, spoke to the group on behalf of the auxiliary. She said they planned to sponsor a constructive project, such as Dr. Marting's address once or twice a year for the citizens of Pickaway county and Circleville.

Mrs. Hosler gave a brief resume of the accomplishments of Dr. Marting and said that she had gained her knowledge from intensive study and research work from hospitals in New York City, Chicago, Illinois, Baltimore, Maryland, and Cincinnati, also hospitals in Europe. She said Dr. Marting is the wife of a physician, and mother of three small children.

Mrs. Walter F. Heine introduced Dr. Marting, who informally discussed the various phases of cancer. Her opening remarks were that "cancer is rated second in the cause of deaths in the United States, which is steadily increasing. Ten percent of all deaths every year are due to the malignant growth. Scientists estimate one out of eight persons have cancer." She stressed the importance of early diagnosis and urged at the very first signs of malignity to consult your family physician, at least once a year, or better—every six months for a general health examination.

"Attempts to eradicate cancer were made by the Egyptians, but the real understanding came with the microscope, approximately 100 years ago. Cancer cells are formed by abnormal growth in process of division. They have no purpose to perform and are outlaws of normal tissues and have no growth control."

In discussing tumors, she said, "they may arise from any 100 varieties in the body cells. Tumors are an overgrowth of cells and may either be simple or cancerous. They grow slowly and by expansion.

"Cancer of a malignant tumor grows rapidly, at the expense of normal tissues. It always is fatal, unless destroyed by an accepted form of treatment. Several factors as to the cause of cancer are known to medical science, but none of the origin. It may derive from chronic infection, repeated injury over a period of time.

"Pre-destination runs in certain families. Cancer," she said, "is not directly inherited, but the strain follows generations. Hormones have some influence, but are not the cause."

Dr. Marting continued, "repeated injuries in the same spot tend to cause cancer, but that is not an accepted rule of any medical scientist." In discussing the various types she noted that in the "early stages there is no pain and the malignancy may not be recognized until the latter stages."

An important statement that cancer is not contagious or infectious was brought to the attention of the group by Dr. Marting. "Early signs and symptons are much the same as caused by other diseases. Cancer is too complex a disease—it might be any bleeding from any body opening—any sore, that does not heal—any lump that does not disappear in a resonable length of time. Diagnosis is up to the consulting physician. Cancer may also be found in persistent indigestion or any abnormality of the body's functions.

"Time is needed to determine, if a person has cancer. The doctor in his diagnosis, uses X-ray, radium and surgery on their combination, which is the only effective remedy known to scientists today. When the case is in the advanced stages, neither of the forenamed are so effective. The easily accessible forms of cancr are the most curable, if treated vigorously and diagnosis made in the early stages. If determined early the patient stands a great chance of recovery—if late, very little.

"The overall cure rate in the United States now is only 15 percent. The important phase is for the public to become cancer conscious, forget their taboos, discuss the malignancy freely and progress will be made."

In conclusion she stressed the origin of the cancer society and told of Cancer Detective Clinics, now in operation in many of the larger cities. She summarized the importance of consulting the family physician for examinations.

Following her most intellectual discussion, Dr. Marting asked the audience to participate in a general open discussion on cancer.

U. S. UNABLE TO MEET EUROPE'S NEED FOR FUEL

Survey Shows Resources Of America Capable Of Producing Half

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—An official survey of American natural resources estimated today that the United States could fill only about one-half of distressed Europe's coal requirements and provide little petroleum as foreign aid.

The report on "natural resources and foreign aid" was prepared by the interior department and is ready for transmission to President Truman.

It is understood to contain these highlights on America's ability to furnish "backbone" assistance to bolster Europe's industrial economy under the Marshall plan:

Coal—Europe's annual production now is about 100 million net tons short of filling her needs, exclusive of Russia. Because of railroad car shortages and port loading limtations, U. S. coal exports probably will not exceed forty eight to fifty million net tons a year in the coming two years.

Petroleum—the United States, now importing as much oil as is being exported, may face some local petroleum shortages in the year ahead. America's estimated 1947 production—and consumption—will be a peak of two billion barrels. U. S. exports to Europe likely will drop, although last year this country met 20 percent of Europe's 308-million barrel requirements.

• • •

IT WAS learned that the government resources experts assigned to correlate the vital statistics on basic coal and oil look for a steady decline in required exports. They are said to estimate that by 1952 this country will have to export only about thirty million tons of coal to Europe.

U. S. coal exports jumped from eight million 814 thousand tons in 1932 to 41,198,194 tons in 1946.

Shortages of coal cars and inadequate ship-loading facilities at such ports as Hampton Roads, Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore are explained as the main bottlenecks on increased coal exports.

Another facotr cited on the European problem is a shortage of the better grades of industrial coal, wanted by European industry. Since May 30, coal authorities say there has been competitive bidding by countries with dollars to spend for high-grade bituminous and anthracite.

The agriculture department reported that the state's turkey crop will total one million, 317 thousand birds. U. S. UNABLE TO MEET EUROPE'S NEED FOR FUEL

Survey Shows Resources Of America Capable Of Producing Half

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—An official survey of American natural resources estimated today that the United States could fill only about one-half of distressed Europe's coal requirements and provide little petroleum as foreign aid.

The report on "natural resources and foreign aid" was prepared by the interior department and is ready for transmission to President Truman.

It is understood to contain these highlights on America's ability to furnish "backbone" assistance to bolster Europe's industrial economy under the Marshall plan:

Coal—Europe's annual production now is about 100 million net tons short of filling her needs, exclusive of Russia. Because of railroad car shortages and port loading limtatons, U. S. coal exports probably will not exceed forty eight to fifty million net tons a year in the coming two years.

Petroleum—the United States, now importing as much oil as is being exported, may face some local petroleum shortages in the year ahead. America's estimated 1947 production—and consumption—will be a peak of two billion barrels. U. S. exports to Europe likely will drop, although last year this country met 20 percent of Europe's 308-million barrel requirements.

• • •

IT WAS learned that the government resources experts assigned to correlate the vital statistics on basic coal and oil look for a steady decline in required exports. They are said to estimate that by 1952 this country will have to export only about thirty million tons of coal to Europe.

U. S. coal exports jumped from eight million 814 thousand tons in 1932 to 41,198,194 tons in 1946.

Shortages of coal cars and inadequate ship-loading facilities at such ports as Hampton Roads, Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore are explained as the main bottlenecks on increased coal exports.

Another facotr cited on the European problem is a shortage of the better grades of industrial coal, wanted by European industry. Since May 30, coal authorities say there has been competitive bidding by countries with dollars to spend for high-grade bituminous and anthracite.

Holdup Victim

FOUR masked gunmen who robbed the Oak Terrace Country Club on Philadelphia's outskirts tied the wrists of Richard Pierce (above) with electric wire. The robbers, who trussed up six other men and three women, escaped with $7,000 in jewelry and cash. (International)

TURKEY IN THE CRAW

HARRISBURG, Oct. 9—There will be plenty of turkeys to grace Thanksgiving and Christmas festive boards in Pennsylvania this year. The agriculture department reported that the state's turkey crop will total one million, 317 thousand birds. Although the output will be five per cent under that of 1946, the department assured consumers there will be "enough for everyone."

TIGER RESERVES MEET CAVALIERS ON HOME FIELD

Varsity Preps For Big Game With Newcomerstown On Friday Night

Chillicothe's reserve football team comes to town Thursday night to challenge the unbeaten Tigers in what may be a "whale of a ball game" before the final gun.

Last Thursday the Circleville second team travelled to Logan and "scalped" the Chieftians 6-0 by virtue of a touchdown in the last three minutes of the ball game.

The second of three local games this week, play is scheduled for 8 p. m. at the Tiger field.

TUESDAY NIGHT in the first of this week's attractions the Circleville eight and ninth graders swamped a Washington C. H. edition of the Blue Lions 31-12.

Biggest attraction of the week for local pigskin enthusiasts will be the Friday night clash here between the Tiger varsity and a strong Newcomerstown squad which has lost only to Zanesville in the season opener, The visiting eleven is tipped as a powerful team sporting some excellent backfield men and a strong line.

ELKS HIGH TEAM IN WEDNESDAY'S BOWLING LEAGUE

High team in the Wednesday night bowling league at the Kelly Hannan alleys was the Elks number two team which scored 2392 to take two games from Hamiltons.

Sims bowled 220 for the American Legion to take top honors for high game as the Legionaires lost two out of three to the K of P bowlers.

High score for three games was Siegwald who bowled 558 for Hamiltons.

Other games saw the Kiwanis number one team whitewash the Ringold Dairy, and the Booster Club shutout the Booster Club, while Fords took two from Rotary and Isalys salvaged two from the Kiwanis number two team.

Ohio College Football Has 23 Games On Tap

By JOHN BARRINGTON

Ohio College teams get down to earnest dog-eat-dog battling this week with only eight of 23 games scheduled against out-of-state foes.

Four Ohio Conference and one Mid-American Conference games are on the docket.

Southern California's invasion of Ohio State heads this week's list, but there will be plenty of fireworks elsewhere around the state.

The bill-of-fare gets off with a hardy appetizer tomorrow night with four attractions, two of them five bell affairs.

TWO OF the Cinderella boys of collegiate coaching ranks, Herb Eisele and Ed Kluska will lock horns at Cincinnati. Eisele's John Carroll eleven has won two games from Wooster and Toledo, each by a lopsided margin. Kluska's Xavier team lost its first game to Kentucky last week after defeating Bowling Green and Western Michigan.

Findlay, current state leader with three victories and 104 points scored, entertains Ohio Northern, one of two teams in the state that has yet to score a point.

In other games tomorrow, undefeated Wilberforce State meets Tuskegee at Chicago and Defiance plays at Ashland.

Youngstown, currently even with Findlay with three straight wins, plays at Toledo Saturday. The Rockets lost to John Carroll last week after two earlier triumphs.

Another headliner pits Bowling Green's tough luck outfit against Sid Gillman's unbeaten Miami Redskins, apparently one of the best in the state again this year. In still another big attraction, Cincinnati is host to undefeated Dayton under ex-high schooler Joe Gavin.

Ohio Conference engagements include Otterbein at Heidelberg, Mt. Union at Wittenberg and Kent State at Wooster in addition to the Carroll-Xavier clash. At Cleveland, Ohio University and Western Reserve meet in a Mid - American Conference game.

Muskingum, only team in the state with an uncrossed goal line, travels to Canterbury.

VEECK REPORTS BOUNDREU TRADE STILL UNDECIDED

CLEVELAND, Oct. 9—The proposed trade of Cleveland Indians' manager Lou Boudreau to the St. Louis Browns continued to be the number one topic of Cleveland sports fans today.

The fire of public reaction over the deal blazed on as Bill Veeck, president of the Cleveland club, returned to town and declined to give a definite "yes" or "no" reply about the player swap.

However, the Indians prexy did squelch the rumor that coach Bill McKechnie had resigned. "He's still with us," Veeck said.

Veeck added that he would not offer Boudreau a contract for next season either as manager or shortstop until he has received a reply from the Browns. Denying that his action resulted from anger at Boudreau's demand for a long-term contract, Veeck declared:

"I've never been mad enough at anyone to make a move that would hurt my ball club. I'm not mad at Lou at all. If I trade him it will be because I think the deal will make the Indians a better team."

..Thanks to Buick's Safety-Ride rims

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

You sense it right from the first in the way your Buick handles.

You feel it not only in the cloud-soft ride of this big beauty, but in the way it seems to lean into the curves, the way it holds its "track," answers unfailingly to your touch on the wheel.

The reason? Simply that even before the war, Buick found a way to get greater softness and greater safety from standard-size tires that are available anywhere.

Put a Buick wheel beside a wheel from other cars, and you see at once that Buick rims are wider.

In fact, they are an inch to an inch and a half wider — from 20% to 33%.

By this simple step, standard-size tires of any make are given greater air capacity. This permits lower air pressure and the softer ride that naturally comes from traveling on 25 pounds instead of 30.

In addition, widening the base of the tires gives bracing against side-thrust, as your legs brace you when you stand with feet apart. This checks sidesway and the tendency of a tire to "roll under" on sharp or fast turns.

Furthermore, the tread is flattened. More rubber is put on the road. More rubber means more traction — more braking power — more resistance to skidding — far, far better car control.

And you have only to compare the handling of a Buick with any other car to see the result. . . .

You travel with a soft, level buoyancy that is Buick's own.

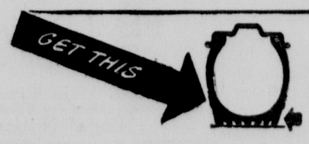

You seem to feel your car leaning into the curves, like a race horse coming into the stretch, instead of swaying outward.

You come out of fast emergency swerves straight and true, with no wheel fight to keep your car on course.

You start, stop, accelerate and turn with a sure-footedness that keeps driving tension away, lets you enjoy Buick's soft comfort to the full.

And all this has been true of every Buick built since before the war, with no change in factory-installed tires.

Check up and see. For a softer ride that is also a safer and surer one — get your order in now for a Buick. We'll take it whether or not you have a car to trade.

There's more rubber on the road with Safety-Ride rims. Result: More traction, better braking, better car control, more skid prevention.

ONLY BUICK HAS SAFETY-RIDE RIMS

On fast turns, tires on ordinary rims "roll under" like this, sometimes almost riding the sidewalls. Buick's wider Safety-Ride rims check this.

TIGER RESERVES MEET CAVALIERS ON HOME FIELD

Varsity Preps For Big Game With Newcomerstown On Friday Night

Chillicothe's reserve football team comes to town Thursday night to challenge the unbeaten Tigers in what may be a "whale of a ball game" before the final gun.

Last Thursday the Circleville second team travelled to Logan and "scalped" the Chieftians 6-0 by virtue of a touchdown in the last three minutes of the ball game.

The second of three local games this week, play is scheduled for 8 p. m. at the Tiger field.

TUESDAY NIGHT in the first of this week's attractions the Circleville eight and ninth graders swamped a Washington C. H. edition of the Blue Lions 31-12.

Biggest attraction of the week for local pigskin enthusiasts will be the Friday night clash here between the Tiger varsity and a strong Newcomerstown squad which has lost only to Zanesville in the season opener, The visiting eleven is tipped as a powerful team sporting some excellent backfield men and a strong line.

Ohio College Football Has 23 Games On Tap

By JOHN BARRINGTON

Ohio College teams get down to earnest dog-eat-dog battling this week with only eight of 23 games scheduled against out-of-state foes.

Four Ohio Conference and one Mid-American Conference games are on the docket.

Southern California's invasion of Ohio State heads this week's list, but there will be plenty of fireworks elsewhere around the state.

The bill-of-fare gets off with a hardy appetizer tomorrow night with four attractions, two of them five bell affairs.

• • •

TWO OF the Cinderella boys of collegiate coaching ranks, Herb Eisele and Ed Kluska will lock horns at Cincinnati. Eisele's John Carroll eleven has won two games from Wooster and Toledo, each by a lopsided margin. Kluska's Xavier team lost its first game to Kentucky last week after defeating Bowling Green and Western Michigan.

Findlay, current state leader with three victories and 104 points scored, entertains Ohio Northern, one of two teams in the state that has yet to score a point.

In other games tomorrow, undefeated Wilberforce State meets Tuskegee at Chicago and Defiance plays at Ashland.

Youngstown, currently even with Findlay with three straight wins, plays at Toledo Saturday. The Rockets lost to John Carroll last week after two earlier triumphs.

Another headliner pits Bowling Green's tough luck outfit against Sid Gillman's unbeaten Miami Redskins, apparently one of the best in the state again this year. In still another big attraction, Cincinnati is host to undefeated Dayton under ex-high schooler Joe Gavin.

Ohio Conference engagements include Otterbein at Heidelberg, Mt. Union at Wittenberg and Kent State at Wooster in addition to the Carroll-Xavier clash. At Cleveland, Ohio University and Western Reserve meet in a Mid-American Conference game.

Muskingum, only team in the state with an uncrossed goal line, travels to Canterbury.

OTHER GAMES: Ohio Wesleyan at Baldwin-Wallace; Denison at Beloit; Sewanee at Kenyon; Washington U. of St. Louis at Oberlin; Capital at Hiram; Cedarville vs. Bluffton at Xenia; Wilmington at Earlham; Arkon at Case, and Marietta vs. Rio Grande at Gallipolis.

Steubenville plays St. Vincent's at Latrobe, Pa., in a Sunday game.

..Thanks to Buick's Safety-Ride rims

You sense it right from the first in the way your Buick handles.

You feel it not only in the cloud-soft ride of this big beauty, but in the way it seems to lean into the curves, the way it holds its "track," answers unfailingly to your touch on the wheel.

The reason? Simply that even before the war, Buick found a way to get greater softness and greater safety from standard-size tires that are available anywhere.

Put a Buick wheel beside a wheel from other cars, and you see at once that Buick rims are wider.

In fact, they are an inch to an inch and a half wider – from 20% to 33%.

By this simple step, standard-size tires of any make are given greater air capacity. This permits lower air pressure and the softer ride that naturally comes from traveling on 25 pounds instead of 30.

In addition, widening the base of the tires gives bracing against side-thrust, as your legs brace you when you stand with feet apart. This checks sidesway and the tendency of a tire to "roll under" on sharp or fast turns.

Furthermore, the tread is flattened. More rubber is put on the road. More rubber means more traction – more braking power – more resistance to skidding – far, far better car control.

And you have only to compare the handling of a Buick with any other car to see the result. . . .

You travel with a soft, level buoyancy that is Buick's own.

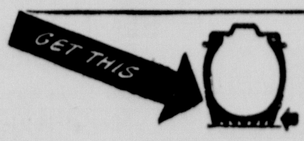

You seem to feel your car leaning into the curves, like a race horse coming into the stretch, instead of swaying outward.

You come out of fast emergency swerves straight and true, with no wheel fight to keep your car on course.

You start, stop, accelerate and turn with a sure-footedness that keeps driving tension away, lets you enjoy Buick's soft comfort to the full.

And all this has been true of every Buick built since before the war, with no change in factory-installed tires.

Check up and see. For a softer ride that is also a safer and surer one – get your order in now for a Buick. We'll take it whether or not you have a car to trade.

There's more rubber on the road with Safety-Ride rims. Result: More traction, better braking, better car control, more skid prevention.

ONLY BUICK HAS SAFETY-RIDE RIMS

On fast turns, tires on ordinary rims "roll under" like this, sometimes almost riding the sidewalls. Buick's wider Safety-Ride rims check this.

Tree Farming Safeguards U. S. Forests Despite Peak Demand for Wood and Pulp

OFF TO THE MILL—A truck thunders out of the forest with its cargo of huge logs—but don't worry. Tree farming has assured that this valuable wood is being replaced as fast as it is being cut.

By FRANK H. BUCK
Central Press Correspondent

PORTLAND, Ore.—With lumber and paper interests devouring forests at an unprecedented rate, what about timber reserves in this vast Pacific Northwest area?

Will the remaining stands of mature trees in the Siskiyous and the Cascades, extending from the northern California line to Canada, now become so much grist for the mills—leaving denuded mountains in the wake of the loggers?

Is the scenic wonder of this western vacationland on its way out?

No, is the answer—despite the fact that capacity of lumber and paper mills in this region has about doubled since 1940.

Here is the reason why: It is "tree farming," the new scientific approach to reforestation, an approach that is not only plain good business for timber men, but also enhances the beauty of this "evergreen playground."

Roughly, the tree farm plan is to cut only as much of the forest each year as is replaced by new growth.

A PROGRAM is underway that has enlisted voluntary cooperation of all types of foresters, from small woodlot owners to major corporations such as Crown Zellerbach and Weyerhaeuser Timber, who control a half million acres apiece.

Participants in the plan work with such government agencies as the Forestry Service, the Soil Conservation Service, the Indian Forest Service, and the Oregon and Washington forestry departments in a program to place their acreage on a permanent production basis.

Most native varieties of trees are now being successfully planted and grown on private lands on a "sustained yield basis," according to officials of the United States Forestry Service here.

The government's part of the picture, usually, is to furnish tree seeds and seedlings, provide advice, fire prevention aids, and join in fighting pests and diseases. The property owner sets out the trees, thins them in accordance with latest practices, and does the work of buying and applying insecticides, and opening roads to be used for fire fighting.

At present, the tree farm idea is of special interest to the pulp and paper industry because the smaller sized trees can be used just as effectively as the larger. But in reforesting correctly areas known as "seed blocks" of old trees are preserved, and when finally "harvested" these become superior heavy lumber material.

IN GENERAL, the cycle between planting and logging is 80 years, with full grown trees being suitable for all sawed lumber and plywood veneer purposes. Meanwhile, there is selective cutting to assist the better situated trees to obtain full growth providing material for the paper mills, as well as for fence posts, railroad ties, and rough construction.

If the entire acreage of a tree farm were to be planted at one time, and cut over at one time, the familiar logged over mountain scene that plagued conservationists would occur in the future as it has in the past, one United States forester pointed out. But the practice is to cut only one-eightieth, roughly, of the stand each year.

"Stripped forests are just as dangerous from a soil conservation standpoint as were the dustbowl tilling practices of the late '20s and early '30s in the midwest," he stated.

"In most of this region there exists heavy rainfall, sometimes as much as 100 inches a year. A stand of trees is essential to prevent serious erosion."

• • •

TREES with growth characteristics suitable for farming operation include Sitka spruce, noble fir, silver fir, white fir, Douglas fir, western red cedar, red alder, hemlock, and black cottonwood. As early as 30 years after planting each block thinning begins, and continues at 10-year intervals thereafter.

Raising the trees is in many ways similar to growing any other farm crop, according to the chief forester of the eight scattered tree farms of the Crown Zellerbach corporation.

"The tree farmer faces about the same hazards as any dirt farmer. He must guard against mountain beaver, rabbits and other rodents that feast on bark and foliage of young trees, killing them. Like any orchardist, he sometimes has to dust and spray to prevent destruction of his crop by insects."

For instance, in the forests around Clatsop, down the Columbia river from here, owners joined together recently to finance over 900 airplane flights to dust DDT and lead arsenate on regions infected with Hemlock looper. An expert of the United States Bureau of Entomology estimated that this work saved from 200 to 400 million feet of timber.

Airplanes are used for seeding, too, being specially valuable in handling burned-over land where quick action is required to reestablish the watershed.

Take what one company did as an example. A report of its forestry department declared:

"This last season we broadcast over 75 million seeds by air over burned-over logged areas in Washington and Oregon. In addition, we planted by hand about 950,000 tree seedlings, with another 190,000 being given away to woodlot owners living adjacent to our seven paper mills."

ONE company estimated that its growing tree crop produces the equivalent of more than 30 carloads of paper a day, enough to supply the average needs of 875,000 American families.

Sustained yield is practical forestry, according to the Forest Service. Each year more timber is being handled on this basis. Of course, the giant Douglas firs, sometimes measuring as much as 15 feet in diameter, can not be replaced for centuries, but smaller trees of this variety can be grown in the 80-year cycle to sufficient size for all commercial purposes.

It is the hope of the government men here that soon all forests will be handled as tree farms. And as paper mills begin to eye the tremendous reserves of Alaska with covetous eyes, they have in mind seeing to it that forests there, when made available by the Department of the Interior, are done so on a basis of "a sustained yield forever."

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

All the propaganda that comes out of Washington, London or Paris will not offset these figures. The efforts of the Luckman Committee must be balanced against these figures. The Communists, led by Russia, have met in Poland to reorganize the Third International and to wage a war of propaganda, deceit, conspiracy, and intrigue against the United States. They have now stepped into the open. They say that there will be no compromise.

Those nations which now say to us that it must be American dollars or they will go Communist have as much at stake as we have. They refuse to strengthen themselves by going to work. England is on a prolonged holiday. France is hoarding. Italy is playing with fire. All demand that this country subsidize them as we subsidized Russia in her war with Germany. Why should we pay these subsidies? What is to be gained? We were told that if we did not subsidize Stalin, Hitler would get us. Now it is Stalin who is after us.

Tree Farming Safeguards U. S. Forests Despite Peak Demand for Wood and Pulp

OFF TO THE MILL—A truck thunders out of the forest with its cargo of huge logs—but don't worry. Tree farming has assured that this valuable wood is being replaced as fast as it is being cut.

By FRANK H. BUCK
Central Press Correspondent

PORTLAND, Ore.—With lumber and paper interests devouring forests at an unprecedented rate, what about timber reserves in this vast Pacific Northwest area?

Will the remaining stands of mature trees in the Siskiyous and the Cascades, extending from the northern California line to Canada, now become so much grist for the mills—leaving denuded mountains in the wake of the loggers?

Is the scenic wonder of this western vacationland on its way out?

No, is the answer—despite the fact that capacity of lumber and paper mills in this region has about doubled since 1940.

Here is the reason why: It is "tree farming," the new scientific approach to reforestation, an approach that is not only plain good business for timber men, but also enhances the beauty of this "evergreen playground."

Roughly, the tree farm plan is to cut only as much of the forest each year as is replaced by new growth.

A PROGRAM is underway that has enlisted voluntary cooperation of all types of foresters, from small woodlot owners to major corporations such as Crown Zellerbach and Weyerhaeuser Timber, who control a half million acres apiece.

Participants in the plan work with such government agencies as the Forestry Service, the Soil Conservation Service, the Indian Forest Service, and the Oregon and Washington forestry departments in a program to place their acreage on a permanent production basis.

Most native varieties of trees are now being successfully planted and grown on private lands on a "sustained yield basis," according to officials of the United States Forestry Service here.

The government's part of the picture, usually, is to furnish tree seeds and seedlings, provide advice, fire prevention aids, and join in fighting pests and diseases. The property owner sets out the trees, thins them in accordance with latest practices, and does the work of buying and applying insecticides, and opening roads to be used for fire fighting.

At present, the tree farm idea is of special interest to the pulp and paper industry because the smaller sized trees can be used just as effectively as the larger. But in reforesting correctly areas known as "seed blocks" of old trees are preserved, and when finally "harvested" these become superior heavy lumber material.

IN GENERAL, the cycle between planting and logging is 80 years, with full grown trees being suitable for all sawed lumber and plywood veneer purposes. Meanwhile, there is selective cutting to assist the better situated trees to obtain full growth providing material for the paper mills, as well as for fence posts, railroad ties, and rough construction.

If the entire acreage of a tree farm were to be planted at one time, and cut over at one time, the familiar logged over mountain scene that plagued conservationists would occur in the future as it has in the past, one United States forester pointed out. But the practice is to cut only one-eightieth, roughly, of the stand each year.

"Stripped forests are just as dangerous from a soil conservation standpoint as were the dustbowl tilling practices of the late '20s and early '30s in the midwest," he stated.

"In most of this region there exists heavy rainfall, sometimes as much as 100 inches a year. A stand of trees is essential to prevent serious erosion."

• • •

TREES with growth characteristics suitable for farming operation include Sitka spruce, noble fir, silver fir, white fir, Douglas fir, western red cedar, red alder, hemlock, and black cottonwood. As early as 30 years after planting each block thinning begins, and continues at 10-year intervals thereafter.

Raising the trees is in many ways similar to growing any other farm crop, according to the chief forester of the eight scattered tree farms of the Crown Zellerbach corporation.

"The tree farmer faces about the same hazards as any dirt farmer. He must guard against mountain beaver, rabbits and other rodents that feast on bark and foliage of young trees, killing them. Like any orchardist, he sometimes has to dust and spray to prevent destruction of his crop by insects."

For instance, in the forests around Clatsop, down the Columbia river from here, owners joined together recently to finance over 900 airplane flights to dust DDT and lead arsenate on regions infected with Hemlock looper. An expert of the United States Bureau of Entomology estimated that this work saved from 200 to 400 million feet of timber.

Airplanes are used for seeding, too, being specially valuable in handling burned-over land where quick action is required to re-establish the watershed.

Take what one company did as an example. A report of its forestry department declared:

"This last season we broadcast over 75 million seeds by air over burned-over logged areas in Washington and Oregon. In addition, we planted by hand about 950,000 tree seedlings, with another 190,000 being given away to woodlot owners living adjacent to our seven paper mills."

ONE company estimated that its growing tree crop produces the equivalent of more than 30 carloads of paper a day, enough to supply the average needs of 875,000 American families.

Sustained yield is practical forestry, according to the Forest Service. Each year more timber is being handled on this basis. Of course, the giant Douglas firs, sometimes measuring as much as 15 feet in diameter, can not be replaced for centuries, but smaller trees of this variety can be grown in the 80-year cycle to sufficient size for all commercial purposes.

It is the hope of the government men here that soon all forests will be handled as tree farms. And as paper mills begin to eye the tremendous reserves of Alaska with covetous eyes, they have in mind seeing to it that forests there, when made available by the Department of the Interior, are done so on a basis of "a sustained yield forever."

THESE DAYS

All the propaganda that comes out of Washington, London or Paris will not offset these figures. The efforts of the Luckman Committee must be balanced against these figures. The Communists, led by Russia, have met in Poland to reorganize the Third International and to wage a war of propaganda, deceit, conspiracy, and intrigue against the United States. They have now stepped into the open. They say that there will be no compromise.

Those nations which now say to us that it must be American dollars or they will go Communist have as much at stake as we have. They refuse to strengthen themselves by going to work. England is on a prolonged holiday. France is hoarding. Italy is playing with fire. All demand that this country subsidize them as we subsidized Russia in her war with Germany. Why should we pay these subsidies? What is to be gained? We were told that if we did not subsidize Stalin Hitler would get us. Now it is Stalin who is after us.

Diet Runs Riot

ONE COOK who liked his own cooking too well is Pfc. David G. Haddad, Army baker who went from 190 to 342 pounds just by overeating, say the doctors. Looking longingly at upside down cake in Los Angeles, he now is under Army orders to cut out sweet stuff. (International)

Most fans have the wrong idea about radio stars. They're inclined to think that celebrities just turn up at a studio once a week and, between broadcasts, have fun at Toots Shor's or in the Cub Room of the Stork Club. This idea wins the blue ribbon for false assumptions. A radio star's life is exhaustingly busy and nerve-wracking. If you aren't convinced, get anyone of them to describe a typical day!

Take, for instance, Bob Hawk whose comedy quiz is now being heard via NBC Thursday nights. When the rest of us are trying to decide when we'd prefer to go fishing or hunting, the ex-school teacher turned quipmaster wonders if he'll ever get to go. Since 1938 he has had only one vacation.

Bob was working at WGN in Chicago, with a morning spot as a disk jockey as the principal item of his work week, when New York beckoned. On Oct. 15, 1938, he did his last show from Chicago. Forty minutes after signing off, he was on a Manhattan bound plane. Within an hour after his arrival he was at a studio in conference with his sponsor. The very next day he made his first broadcast from New York.

Life for Hawk has been moving at that tempo ever since. As for relaxing between Thursday nights, it just isn't done by a quiz king who respects his Hooper rating. Bob, whose current rating places him seventh on the popularity list, gives the largest part of every day to research for questions and answers. There's always a tremendous amount of fan mail to read and answer. On the air he must be able to come through with an apposite quip for every situation.

There are constant demands on his time and energies to appear at civic and charitable events, and Bob has been known to fly all the way from New York to Denver between shows to dedicate a ball park. He personally provides the publications of many veterans' hospitals with a weekly "Hawk-quiz."

It all adds up to the fact that being a radio star is a full time job, but there probably isn't one around who would swap for a less glamorous occupation, even if it did assure a month's vacation every year!

Harold Peary, star of NBC's "The Great Gildersleeve," was the head judge to select "Miss Television of Southern California" this week and, after the contest, took a bit part in a televised drama.

Milton Berle revealed that the new radio show he's producing will cost $60,000. Major Barney Oldfield, former Warner Bros. executive, returned to the Army as chief of radio and television

—Approximately 135 top national advertisers will donate one million dollars in air time to aid the Advertising Council's education drive—David Rose putting the finishing touches on a new composition titled "Cantor Concerto" as a tribute to Eddie Cantor—Kenneth Banghart won out over some 55 contenders for the spokesman spot on the one-hour dramatic show over NBC. Cigarette sponsor of "It Pays To Be Ignorant" has bought a new package with Dinah Shore, Harry James and Art Lund to replace it—The Burl Ives show, which recently inaugurated a new policy of guest stars and a live audience, was renewed over Mutual effective Oct. 17—The National Radio Advisory committee of the Veterans Administration at a meeting in Washington agreed that the VA's radio activities should be continued and that the use of television should be further explored—The first World Series game was broadcast over approximately 600 stations in the United States, its possessions and Canada. In addition, it was beamed to Latin American countries and service personnel abroad—Tom Breneman will take his "Breakfast in Hollywood" program on a coast-to-coast tour this month for the benefit of various Community Chests and Cancer Fund drives—The New York Philharmonic Symphony begins its 18th season of broadcasts over CBS on Oct. 12 with Leopold Stokowski as guest conductor of the first program—"The Eternal Light," produced on NBC under the sponsorship of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, began its fourth year on the air with the broadcast of Oct. 5.
